

Students Elect Leaders For '44

Annual Poll Also Names Other Outstanding Persons

Marian M. Kreider and Charles Wolke, presidents of the YWCA and YMCA, respectively, were elected the outstanding Campus leaders in a poll conducted in chapel last Friday morning, January 7.

Marian, a senior pre-med, is a member of Who's Who for 1943-1944, the News Staff of LA VIE COLLEGIENNE, Editor of the '44 Quittie, a member of Green Blotter and vice president of the Biology Club.

Charles, a senior pre-theolog., is a member of Life Work Recruits, President of the Student Faculty Council, and Business Manager of the '44 Quittie.

Dale Beittel, '45, another pre-theolog., was named the most handsome male. Dale is a member of the YMCA Cabinet and the Life Work Recruits. Barbara Kolb, a freshman lassie, was elected the prettiest of coeds.

The athletes, though few in number, were also in for a judging. Frank Shupper '46, flashy forward on the Blue and White Court, was given the "High honor" for the men. Frankie is also remembered as a snappy back on the L. V. C. gridiron in "the good old days." Joanne "Josie" Bittner, '45, got the nod in the female sports department. She has distinguished herself in hockey and in basketball.

The fashion plates named were Betty June Bomgardner, '44, and William Schindel, '44.

This poll is conducted through the cooperation of the Quittapahilla and LA VIE COLLEGIENNE.

Carmean Announces Advent Of Blood Bank, January 25

Professor D. Clark Carmean announced today that the students of Lebanon Valley College will again have an opportunity to make donations to the Red Cross Blood Bank.

The office of Mr. I. M. Long, 12 W. Main Street, will be open all day Wednesday, January 19, for registration. All those students who have not had a cold within the last two weeks and who are willing to contribute to the Bank are urged to call or visit the registration center.

The Blood Bank will be open on the following Tuesday, January 25. Transportation will be provided from Mr. Long's office, as has been done on previous occasions.

LA VIE Reduces Next Semester's Publications

LA VIE COLLEGIENNE is forced to reduce the number of editions scheduled for the second semester. Though no definite schedule has been drawn up, it is tentatively decided that there will be bi-weekly publications.

Associate Chairman Lebanon Concerts Sponsor Traubel

Monday, January 24, Is Date for Next Recital

LLOYD A. SATTZAHN

N. B.—This is the second of a series of introductions to the leaders of the Lebanon Valley College Building and Endowment Campaign.

In the last issue of LA VIE COLLEGIENNE, you were introduced to the General Chairman of the Committee. This week you are going to meet his Associate, Mr. Lloyd A. Sattazahn.

Mr. Sattazahn is well known in local banking circles. He is the Executive Vice President of the Lebanon National Bank, Lebanon. His professional experience, has made him a much sought after man in the United Brethren Church.

In the capacity of Treasurer of the Salem United Brethren Church, Lebanon, he has demonstrated his usefulness. The College has likewise benefited from his services in that Mr. Sattazahn is chairman of the Finance (Continued on Page 4, Column 2)

The next Lebanon Community Concert on Monday, January 24, will feature as its guest artist Helen Traubel, one of the great Sopranos of all time.

Her triumph is that of an American artist, born of native American parents in the city of St. Louis, and of an art nurtured and inspired entirely in America. Acclaimed by critics and public alike, Miss Traubel, as a practically unknown young soprano had within two months taken her place as one of the transcendent artists of song. A first Town Hall recital in October, a coast-to-coast broadcast on the Ford Hour the following Sunday, an engagement with the New York Philharmonic a week later, and then her unforgettable Metropolitan Opera debut in December—all this in two months.

In the New York press appeared words long unwritten in musical circles. Comments such as these—"Electrifying power and intensity" and "epic grandeur and nobility."

Miss Traubel has swept audiences to their feet in cheering acclaim in three historic trans-continental tours. The San Francisco News stated: "It is the extraordinary range, warmth and an amazing variety of color which makes the Traubel voice the greatest soprano of its day."

As a prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera Association, and an outstanding concert singer, Helen Traubel has brought to music the glory of her personality and the splendor of her voice.

German Refugee Addresses Students

Is Representative of World Student Service Fund

Miss Sonia Grodka, a German refugee who is now a student at Bernington College, Bernington, Vermont, spoke to the student body during the chapel period Monday morning, January 10. Miss Grodka represented the World Student Service Fund, an agency of international student relief.

After a brief explanation of the organization of the World Student Service Fund, the speaker described the work that is now being done by means of the fund among evacuated refugees and migrating students in China, France, Switzerland, Russia, and America, and among student prisoners of war in Germany, Italy, Japan, Canada, and the United States. She also expressed the immediate need of students in occupied countries not only for books and materials, but also for food. Miss Grodka closed her talk with a plea for aid from our campus for students less fortunate than we are.

•Typist

Several issues ago, LA VIE COLLEGIENNE sent out a call for one or two typists. The need was not as urgent then as now. Dorothy Graybill, whose dependability and willingness to work are greatly appreciated by the editor and his staff, will be leaving us the second semester to enter Drexel Institute of Technology. As a result there arises an urgency for extra typists. When there are two or three, the work can easily be divided and no one person will be forced to sacrifice too much of her time. Anyone willing to give several hours each issue to LA VIE COLLEGIENNE is urged to contact Yvonne Raab. In conclusion, the staff of LA VIE COLLEGIENNE extends its thanks to both Yvonne and Dorothy for their assistance during the first semester.

•Back the Team

The boys lost their opener. What are we going to do about it? We could sit back and pick them apart. Better still, we could criticize the coach. Or perhaps we might even have a good alibi session one of these nights when studying for exams has us in "one of those moods."

On the other hand, we might be a bit more constructive about the matter. How? Well, the Dutchmen are scrapping again this week, Saturday night, to be exact. They certainly would appreciate it if as many of us as are free would come barging in on their evening and do a bit of rooting. It would also do us a lot of good to get out for a night before we begin grappling for those honor grades next week. If you have a roommate who insists on staying in on Saturday night so that she can prepare herself to outdo you in those once-a-semester killjoys, club her on the head, stick her in a muffler, and drag her to the Annville High Gym. If she refuses to yell once you get her there, step on her toes or yank out her teeth; she'll yell. . . . Seriously though, the boys do need our support. Let's all try our best to be on hand and chip in; it will be much easier on everyone concerned.

•Our Pledge

It's not too late for us to go to the office of the Lebanon Valley College Building and Endowment Campaign Office in room 15 and make our pledge. Those of us who have not been contacted by a representative of the Student Campaign Committee, should report to Ruth Haverstock or to Mr. Williams immediately. This is our Campaign as well as that of the alumni and the United Brethren Church. Though we will not benefit from it in the sense that we will have the use of the new building, we will be able to point a proud finger at the building when it is completed. When our sons and daughters come to L.V.C., they will be proud of us.

DISC DATA

The life of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart was not without its very trying circumstances. In June, 1788, an extremely busy time for the composer, he was urged by the landlord to move from his dwellings after he had first paid the rent. He and his family moved to suburban Vienna at Warin-gergrasse by the sign of the Three Stars. His new ledgings were not devoid of a comparative advantage over the old. Though it cost a good deal of money to drive to town, he was bothered far less, and his musical output became greater. June 26, 1788, Mozart put the final touches on several works including the E Flat Symphony No. 39; Adagio and Fugue for String Quartet; a March; and a little sonata which later became popularized as, In An 18th Century Drawing room. Doubtless the modern version brought more revenue to its popularizer than the original ever yielded Mozart himself. The financial status of Mozart was sadly wanting, but he managed to receive donations from Michael Puchburg, an amateur musician and a wealthy merchant. Though the merchant got not one penny, or kreutzer, in return, he "bought relected immortality at a bargain."

The Symphony No. 39 in E Flat is the first of the last great three which Mozart composed in an incredibly short space of time. The fortieth is probably the most popular, but not because of any demerits in the one in E Flat. It is, according to at least one author, a summer symphony that expresses the gay and untroubled attitude of the warm months, with pastoral moods that approach those of Beethoven. The opening Adagio is a summer landscape followed by the pastoral Allegro movement. Andante, a minuet with trio, and Finale make up the remainder of the work with each movement as restful as its preceding one. The Finale brings the work to a lively conclusion with the principle theme used as a final cadence. It is without doubt one of the best and most enjoyable of all symphonies ever written, especially for those with a love for Mozartian works.

Our Weekly Meditation

PSALM 121

I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help.

My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth.

He will not suffer thy foot to be moved: he that keepeth thee shall not slumber.

Behold, he that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep.

The Lord is thy keeper: the Lord is thy shade upon thy right hand.

The sun shall not smite thee by day, nor the moon by night.

The Lord shall preserve thee from all evil: he shall preserve thy soul.

The Lord shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth, and even for evermore.

Condolences

LA VIE COLLEGIENNE joins the students and faculty of the College in extending condolences to Mary Elizabeth Moyer and Richard Horner in their recent bereavements.

Confidential Causerie. . . .

This holiday has fulfilled our desires as far as new engagements are concerned—the diamonds being flashed about the campus are most prominent . . . Ruthie Harnish is wearing one recently acquired from her sailor . . . another proud bearer of the stone is Dodie Landis . . . nor can we forget Gene Bowman.

THE SYMPHONY SYNCOPATES

And the alumnae present was a beauty to behold. There were Jessie Robertson and Ruth Wix back in the string section, and "Hub" Curry in the brass.

The audience, too, contained many of our past year's friends, all of whom, we were glad to see back.

Now is the appropriate time to say late congratulations to our soloists—Ruth Karre and Hazel Fornoff . . . not to mention the grand accompanying that "Johnny," the younger, did.

What about the poetry that was circulating about the balcony—but read by a chosen few . . . your columnist felt quite neglected!

STATION W.M.D. CALLING NORTH HALL

Anything can happen here and it did. An official broadcast from the Men's Dorm was heard the Friday past. Snupper, in an effective voice, made all female hearts swoon (we hear that he's related to Sinatra), but none seem to have had serious complications . . . then came some juicy gossip—about as juicy as a burnt steak—however, we'd like to hear more of the same . . . programs we mean, not gossip.

ROUND ABOUT

Janice Stahl took a hurried trip to Wisconsin during the last daze of vacation . . . 'nuf said. Incidentally, have you noticed the opal that "Jan" has been wearing?

The rumor is about that several of our co-ed's held houseparties over the holidays, but we'll let them remain rumors.

Marty Yeakle is about to join the Waves, we've heard . . . well, there's something about a sailorette, n'est pas?

Sadistic souls in the dining hall the other night watched the rest of us drool while they munched on chocolate angel cake and peanut butter rudge . . . even the faculty looked on with envy, all to no avail . . . which goes to show you that this is a democracy, or something.

The Horner-Haruz combination looked right well at the day-student dance . . . and the Frantz's did a prettier and sister polka act . . . after waiting so long.

Etta Ayers is still mailing those weekly letters to the "service" every Monday morning . . . maybe it's her contribution to the war effort.

Did all you lem's see the new photo of Wayne in technicolor that Ginny Dromgold is displaying?

And why has Glenn Hall been visiting south hall so frequently this week past?

One New Year's Resolution was made by Jean Kauffman, that is to keep on campus for at least one week-end Gladys Flinchbaugh—but most resolutions get broken sooner or later.

And so, for now, finis.

Servicemen Write

Each week LA VIE COLLEGIENNE will print letters from boys in the service. If you have a letter which might interest the student body or other servicemen receiving LA VIE please hand it to Sam Beamesderfer or Frances Workman.

Dear Prof.

Hi there, you old Conservite! I just want to come in "on the beam" long enough to bark out a new address. Yep! You can now address me as Cpl. J. S. Bachman, B-24 MTU No. 37, Langley Field, Va. A train ride last Tuesday culminated with a stop in Va., so here I am for about two weeks. You see, I'm a member of a mobile training unit now, so I'll be continually on the move. Perhaps you should make a notation after the name Langley Field, stating (Subject to Change) I see where I'm going to have a great time with mail. Probably I'll get my Christmas cards after the duration and six months.

I did get an unexpected pleasure through the transfer, though. Believe it or not, I was home for Christmas. If anyone would have told me that a week ago, I'd have sent them to the section 8 clinic. But it really happened. I arrived here Friday afternoon, after 3 days on trains (7 to be exact) and was offered a two-day pass, if I was interested. Boy, was I! Anyway, it was wonderful to surprise the folks at home with a visit. I had telegraphed them of my shipment, and said I'd let them know my destination on Christmas, expecting to telephone. Instead, I delivered the information in person. Our group consists of an officer, two civilians, a G.I. truck driver, and so far 9 soldiers. Each is a specialist on some phase of a B-24—so by stopping at a camp, we can teach either beginning classes, refresher courses, or merely ask questions and help with maintenance. The whole gang is a good bunch of fellows, so what more can you want. As for the other little items that generally go with the army

—they're well taken care of too. In fact, better than taken care of. No inspections, either barracks or personal—no calisthenics—transportation all over the camp by car, and anything else you might want! The field is a pre-war field, so you can imagine it is quite well-developed. The town is more or less dead though compared to Denver, but since you move around every 2-4 weeks, a little thing like that does not really worry you much.

I believe I'll close for now, Prof. since I haven't had but one night in bed during the past 7 days, and that one was at home. So you can imagine it didn't include too many hours. So—until next time—I remain, a "traveling Conservite"

Very sincerely,

Jim Bachman.

Hear Ye! Hear Ye!

"E" is for effort, "X" is for—well, to make it easier: "EX" is for exuberance.

"A" is for absence, and "M" is for the months we need yet to prepare us for those blues in the nights and the green hangers they leave us on exam days. Just think, tomorrow they are here. And so are we, alas.

If you haven't started as yet, better hit those books hard tonight. It might help a little.

"Mike's" Men Ready For Home-Court Debut Saturday

Dear Prof.

In reply to your late query as to the condition of my "write" arm, please accept this as proof that said object is still in existence.

Your "chain" Christmas greetings were by far the nicest I have ever received. Will you thank all those who wrote a greeting to me? I had no idea last year, when I was penning similar notes to the boys in the services, how much so simple a thing could mean. I know all the others feel exactly as I do. Thank you, so much.

How is the Symphony concert rounding into shape? I wish I could sneak into the second violin section about concert time and add my little bit. My playing isn't too good right now (was it ever?), but it would most certainly feel wonderful to sit in on even a rehearsal.

I'm glad you have a better soloist this year than last... one who won't stop in the middle of things and spoil the concert. Gosh, I'd like to hear it.

Have you been to any of the H'bg concerts this year? How do they sound? Have they lost many members? How are the crowds?

Could you get the "Trombone" editors busy on a new address list? There are several fellows I would like to write to, (no cracks called for), but I'm sure there must be some changes of address by now. There won't be any time before your concert, I know. But afterwards, hmmm?

Good luck—I hope it's the best program the Symphony has ever played.

Sincerely,
Marvin Detambel.

Ruth Graybill, '44, Returns to Her Home

On December 29, after a stay of five and a half weeks in the Harrisburg Hospital, Ruth Graybill returned to her home at Penbrook.

Her condition is very satisfactory, but it is understood that she must remain in bed for some time. Since she was to have been graduated in January, 1944, the faculty decided to give her her diploma, which Dr. Lynch presented to her on Wednesday, December 22.

In a letter from Mrs. Graybill which Dr. Lynch received on Monday, she says: "Will you please tell all who inquire about Ruth that she is looking forward to the time when she can visit the college and see everyone and thank them personally for the many expressions of best wishes, holiday greetings, letters, etc., which she has received while being ill. She has certainly appreciated all of them. We hope that anyone who has an opportunity to visit Ruth while she is convalescing at home will feel free to do so. She enjoys having visitors. Ruth has truly experienced a remarkable recovery this far unexplainable in medical science, but we know that God answers prayer and that miracles still happen."

Personals

The following Lebanon Valley men now in the service spent Christmas at home:

George Rutt, '46.
Clyde Kramer, '46.
Frank Meze, '46.
John Shalley, '46.
Robert Donough, '45.
George Edwards, '44.
John Sherman, '46.
Wayne Rohland, '46.
Richard Fluss, '46.

Pfc. Warren Silliman who graduated in January, 1943, and is now a student at Jefferson Medical School, Philadelphia, spent part of the holiday season in Annville.

Madalyn Quickel spent the weekend of December 17 in New York.

Miss Lena Lietzau was delayed on her return to campus by the congestion on the railroads. She found it impossible to return to campus before Wednesday, January 5.

Miss Esther Henderson was also late in her return from her vacation. After spending Christmas at home in Marysville, Ohio, she went to Snipensburg on December 31, and while there became ill with influenza. She came back to Lebanon Valley on Sunday, January 9.

Viola Shettel spent part of her vacation visiting relatives at Parkton, Maryland. Her father, Lieutenant Paul Shettel, formerly a professor here, is now an army chaplain at the German prison camp at Little Rock, Arkansas. Mrs. Shettel and son, John, are living there with him.

Blossom Levitz spent ten days beginning December 18, with relatives at Richmond, Virginia. While there she attended a family reunion.

Janice Stahl spent New Year's with a friend in Madison, Wisconsin.

On Sunday, January 9, Frances Workman was visited by her sister, Lillian Workman, and a friend, Marianne Yoke. Both girls live in Reiner-ton.

Oscar Light of the class of '47, is now Pvt. Light of the U. S. Army. He left on Thursday, January 6.

At a New Year's Eve party at their home in Palmyra, Mr. and Mrs. William Bowman announced the engagement of their daughter, Gene, to Howard Neidig of Lemoyne. Miss Bowman is a member of the class of '45, and Mr. Neidig graduated in 1943.

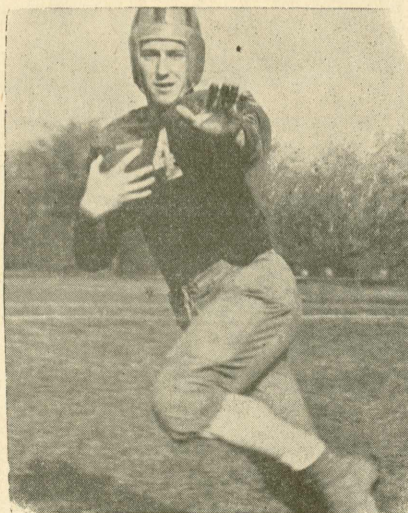

Ensign Richard Owen, formerly of the class of '43, visited Dr. and Mrs. Clyde A. Lynch last Friday, January 7. Contrary to custom, Ensign Owen was the host at dinner in the Hershey Community Club Dining Room. It was the first time since Dr. Lynch's presidency that a former student returned to the campus to be a host to the Prexy.

Cadet David J. Latz, former member of the Blue and White football squad, has reported for duty at the Army Air Forces Bombardier School, Carlsbad, New Mexico, where he will study advanced high-school bombardiering and dead-reckoning navigation.

George "Chick" Edwards, now in the U. S. Navy, has been transferred to Northwestern University. Here he will undergo the training administered to Midshipmen of the U. S. Navy.

BIOLOGY CLUB

An interesting color film will highlight the Biology Club meeting to be held Thursday, January 20, in the biology lecture room. The movie, obtained from the Dupont Company, deals with plant parasites and is said to be a very much worthwhile film.

GREEN BLOTTER CLUB

The Green Blotter Club has cancelled its meeting scheduled for tonight, January 13. All Ink Spots are urged to watch the bulletin board for announcements about the next meeting.

The World Citizenship Movement, under the leadership of Colonel Tchou, has planned a series of conferences. This spring the Lebanon County chapter is to meet to work out a platform for this district. A regional conference is to take place in the fall with a national one scheduled for the next spring.

Intrieri's Courtsters Fall to the Tune of 45-27 On Albright Battlefield

Coach Mike Intrieri's Flying Dutchmen were the victims of a high-stepping Albright College quintet on the latter's court, Saturday night, January 8, to the doleful tune of 45-27. This was the season's opener for the Valley.

The Valley cause was valiantly lead by the lone veteran of the club, Frankie Shupper. Though the team displayed a game spirit, they were no match for the clawing Lions of Reading. This was the sixth straight win for the Albrightians, who have amazed pre-season prognosticators with their performances to date. Incidentally, they are at the head of the undefeated court squads in Pennsylvania.

The Lions opened up early to post a 12-6 lead over the Blue and White in the initial stanza. Holding the upper hand by a 9-5 margin in the second period, they hiked their advantage to 21-11 at halftime. Resuming the offensive in the third chukker, the Lions again doubled the score on the Dutchmen, posting a 16-8 advantage, to boost their lead to 37-19 at three-quarters and from there on the Lions subsided with reserves in action for the most part. As it was, the Dutchmen matched scores with their old-time rivals in the final chapter at 8-all but Albright's commanding early lead was never threatened.

Shupper put on a one-man scoring show for the fans by tossing a half-dozen field goals and converting a like number of charity chucks to pace the parade with 18 points. Detweiler scored the only other field goal credited to the Dutchmen, but the Blue and White cashed in from the charity stripe by counting 13 points on penalties.

Big John Derko paced the Lions with 15 points. The summary:

Miss Grodka arrived on the campus Sunday afternoon and met with the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. cabinets along with other interested students at vespers. At this meeting she not only explained the work of the W.S.S.F., but she also described her own experiences in Germany and the United States.

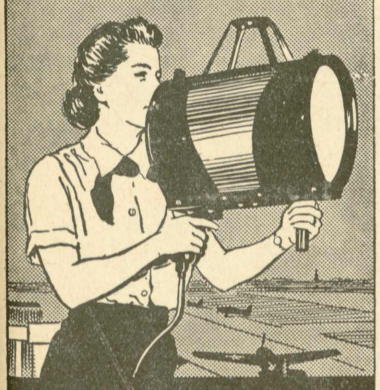

The campus Christian associations will try to keep the student body informed of the activities of the W. S. S. F. by means of either for books or for money, whichever seems most practical.

College Symphony Thrills Audience

Varied Program Presents Karre and Fornoff

The Lebanon Valley College Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Prof. Edward P. Rutledge, presented its annual concert on Friday evening, January 8, in Engle Hall. The program was opened with Prelude to Act I—Carmen by Bizet. This was followed by Overture to Iphigenia in Aulis by Gluck. The next number, First Movement, Concerto in A Minor by Grieg featured Hazel Fornoff, pianist.

After the intermission Two Spanish Dances by Moszkowsky were played. Ruth Karre, soprano, was the soloist in the next two numbers, Lo! Hear the Gentle Lark by Bishop, flute obligato—Nancy Johns, and Gavotte from Manon by Massenet. The program was closed with Weinberger's Czech Rhapsody.

Members of the orchestra are as follows: Violins—Elizabeth Reiff, Concert-master, Harold Malsh, Grace Spangler, Emma Catherine Miller, Helen Dellinger, Glenn Hall, Miriam Carper, Sara Shott, Betty June Bomgardner, Dorothy Landis, Elizabeth Moyer; Violas—D. Clark Carmean, Adelaide Sanders; Violoncellos—Meredith Houser, Jessie Robertson, Helen Hartz; Basses—Charlotte Mohler, Ruth Wix; Percussion—Sarah Koury, Sarah Stauffer, Betty Jean Butt; Flute—Nancy Johns; Oboe—Mary Grace Bryce; Clarinets—Evelyn Ling, Berenice Corbalis; Bassoons—Rosalie Reinhold, Dorothy Moyer; Horns—Robert Zimmerman, Janice Stahl, Betty June Gingrich, Laura Royce; Trumpets—Arthur Stambach, Herbert Curry; Trombones—Mary Jane Weiland, June Carson, Erwin Smarr.

Fenn College, Cleveland, Ohio, recently opened the first College personnel training laboratory in the nation. The experimental laboratory may lead to Fenn offering an A.B. degree in personnel training or to a new school devoted exclusively to this field.

The purpose of the laboratory, as stated by Prof. Joseph S. Kopas, its founder is simply "to make more efficient use of the men and women in industry."

The laboratory looks like any college professor's office except that scattered around on the tables are a few mysterious boxes and gadgets, which contain, or are in themselves, really aptitude or panel tests.

"Reason for the laboratory is that we not only have to train people to be professional personnel workers, we must also develop the tools, equipment, and the textbooks for them to use," Prof. Kopas stated.

After the war he hopes to set up a course leading to a regular college degree in personnel work.

Miss Travis Makes Debut As Conserv Faculty Soloist

On Monday, January 3, Miss Elizabeth Travis, Professor of Piano in the Conservatory, presented a recital, her first L. V. faculty appearance, in Engle Hall. A varied and interesting program displayed Miss Travis' versatility, fine musicianship, and remarkable technique.

The program was as follows: Pavane in B flat Major by Bach; Sonata, Op. 10, No. 3, by Beethoven; Variations on the Name Aheg by Schumann; Ballade in G minor by Chopin; Air and Fugue on White Keys by Fuleihan; Poissons d'Or by Debussy; Prelude in E flat Major by Rachmaninoff; and Waltz from Ballet "Nailla" by Delibes.

Dr. Lynch Represents L.V. At Education Conferences

Dr. Clyde A. Lynch, President of Lebanon Valley College, will represent the College at the annual meetings of the National Conference of Church-Related Colleges, and the Association of American Colleges at the Wetherland Plaza Hotel, Cincinnati, Ohio, from January 12-15.

One of the speakers for the occasion will be Lord Halifax. The main topic to be discussed is The Colleges Prepare for Peace.

Dr. Lynch will be accompanied to Ohio by Mrs. Lynch.

CARNEGIE ADDITIONS

The Carnegie library has recently received some additions to its varied collections. The largest donor has been Mrs. H. H. Norton who is C. B. Montgomery's sister. Various other friends have contributed books and papers of eminent characters.

Among the articles received were one thousand transcripts and original manuscripts dealing largely with iron in the vicinity of Chester, Berks and York counties. In addition, the library now has about five hundred books, the largest per cent of which deal with France from the time of Louis XIV to Louis XVI. Along with these are about twenty French prints and four French maps, dating back to the time of Louis XIV.

A number of personal memoirs form a special collection. A letter from Major Logan to Conrad Weiser is also a prized possession. Along with this is to be found the American Edition of the Boydell Shakespeare prints published by Shearjashub Spooner.

An original painting by George Schutlz, which is an imaginary picture of the William Byrd furnace, and a charming Pennsylvania scene by Dunkelberg of Reading, Pennsylvania, have been added.

In the C. B. Montgomery memorial room there are now two valuable pieces of ironwork cast at the early forges. A French desk and an Early Colonial desk used to file Montgomery transcripts are the extent of the additions.

New Semester Finds Adams and Matter Increase In Student Enrollment At L.V.C. Head Delphian Girls Other Officers Also Elected

The beginning of the new semester, Monday, January 2, saw the enrollment of Lebanon Valley College increase with the registration of twenty-one new students, many of whom are high school seniors taking the accelerated course. There are also a number of extension students.

The new students are as follows: Robert M. Beshore, George Bickle, Donald S. Boyer, Burton E. Carson, Abba D. Cohen, Richard E. Cover, J. Russel Gingrich, Lois M. Goodling, Samuel A. Hartman.

William Kiefer, Robert M. Kline, Joseph L. Markley, John E. Marshall, Leocadia C. Moody, John W. Muttin, Clyde J. Saylor, David P. Sheetz, Edmund R. Smith, Evelyn M. Stonecipher, Hilda M. Tulli, and Stanley A. Wentling.

With the exception of four, all the new students are men, which points out the changes that the war is making in the education of boys of high school age. Ordinarily they would have entered college a semester later.

One of the students, Mrs. Leocadia C. Moody, is the widow of the late Lieutenant Richard Moody, Class of '41.

ALUMNI CHAIRMAN

DANIEL E. WALTER

N. B.—This is No. 3 in the series introducing campaign heads.

Dan Walter, who is heading the Alumni Campaign in Lebanon Valley College's Building and Endowment Campaign, graduated from L. V. C. in 1918. He was in his day one of the college's outstanding athletes.

An insurance agent by profession, "Danny" has also served as Postmaster of the city of Lebanon since 1933. He is active in civic affairs, being, among other things, a member of both the Lebanon High School Athletic Council and the Lions Club.

He takes his position at the head of the Alumni Campaign, by virtue of the fact that he has been serving as Alumni President since 1937. The college is grateful for the contributions of time and effort which Danny has so willingly given.

The Delphian Literary Society, at two recent meetings, elected their Anniversary and second semester Presidents, Anne Adams and Carolyn Matter, respectively. Other officers and committees were named to assist them.

On Tuesday, February 1, the regular election for second semester officer was held. In addition to President Matter, the following were elected: Vice President, Grace Spangler; Corresponding Secretary, Phyllis Snyder; Recording Secretary, Marian Ulmer; Treasurer, Doris Sterner; Pianist, Helen Seabrook; and Wardens, Gale Horstick, Caroline Moss, Madelyn Quickel, and Nora Mae Goodman.

Anne Adams, Anniversary President, was elected to office on Tuesday, January 25. She immediately named her committees in preparation for the Society's annual dance. The date of which has not been named.

Committees are: Orchestra—Berenice Corbalis, Chairman, Charlotte Mohler and Madelyne Quickel; Place—Caroline Matter, Chairman, Verna Casset and Caroline Moss; Chaperones—Grace Spangler, Chairman, Mary Jane Rowe and Mildred Palmer; Transportation—Emma Catherine Miller, Chairman, Garnetta Seavers, and Betty Minnich.

Programs—Virginia Dromgold, Chairman, Helen Seabrook, and Marian Ulmer; and Alumni—Lizette Fisher, Chairman, Gale Horstick, and Catherine Yeager.

Kauffman Heads Seniors During Second Semester

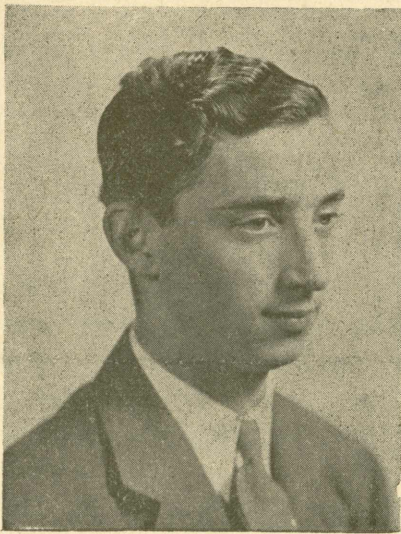

The Seniors elected Gerald Kauffman president at the second semester elections held on Tuesday, February 1, in Room 5 of the Ad Building. Kauffman became a Senior at the beginning of the present semester and will graduate in August.

Richard Hoerner was elected to the Vice-Presidency and Esther Wagner to the Secretary's post. Both are May graduates. Marion Kreider, Treasurer, was retained without ballot.

At the time LA VIE went to press, there was no cut of the new Senior President available.

Shenk Collection Discussed In December 15 Journal

The Library Journal, December 15, 1943, carries an article of interest to Lebanon Valley College students and Alumni. Under the heading, "An Idea—And Some Luck," there appears an article concerning Lebanon Valley's new Shenk Collection.

The article, originally a letter written by Miss Helen E. Myers, is reprinted in part below:

"About three years ago Merle M. Hoover, one of our alumni who has assembled the Benjamin Collection for Columbia University, suggested that we ought to have a special collection in the Lebanon Valley College Library. We had kept away from special collections, because we felt that we should first build up the main library until it had become a sizable working collection. However, through the years, we had preserved all local material of various kinds that came into our hands.

"It wasn't very difficult to decide what our special collection should be; it was to be a 'regional library.' We are geographically situated in what is usually thought of as Pennsylvania German land. Into this region have come a number of influences which have determined its culture, other than German; the English had settled in some places, the Welsh and the Scotch Irish in others."

"As we were deciding just what we wanted to do, fate played into our hands. Dr. G. S. Derickson, an alumnus, bought a medical practice in Womelsdorf, Berks County. The last heirs moving out left behind the family records. Dr. Derickson presented the daybooks and the account books of the Drs. John Tryon Livingood and Louis from 1817-1900.

"We had assembled before that a number of books dealing with that area. This collection is named the Hiram Herr Shenk Collection, for a professor who had been associated with the college for many years. He was State Archivist for a while and knows anecdotes and Pennsylvania history well.

"There are no limits to the possibility of this collection. So many diversified influences make this region interesting that it is hard to define the limits of this collection. The first influence was religion; many sects came here, each seeking one thing, freedom of religion—Lutherans, Reformed, Moravians, Evangelical, Menonites, Amish, Dunkers, Presbyterians, Seventh Day Baptists and many others. The second was agricultural; this section is a rich agricultural one, orchards, dairy farms as well as general farming. The third, the Cornwall (Continued on Page 4, Column 4)

Nancy Kreider Weds Pvt. John Schreiber This Afternoon

Newly-Weds Were High School and College Classmates

At two o'clock this afternoon, Miss Nancy B. Kreider, class of '45, and Pvt. John W. Schreiber, also class of '45, were united in marriage at an impressive double ring ceremony in the First Reformed Church of Lebanon. Rev. Malcolm Barr, pastor, performed the ceremony. Mr. Harry Kreider, father of the bride, gave her away in marriage.

The wedding was preceded by an organ recital and two solos. Mrs. Murray Bowman, organist, played Serenade, Salute d'Amour, and Traumeri. The beautiful and traditional Because and The Sweetest Story Ever Told were the two vocal selections sung by Mrs. Richard Becker.

The bride wore a lovely white satin gown styled with a sweetheart neckline, puffed sleeves, a full train, and a finger tip veil. She carried a charming bouquet of white roses and sweet peas. The groom was dressed in the latest fashion of the day, an army uniform.

Attending the bride, was her classmate, Miss Elizabeth Sheetz, who wore an attractive blue gown and carried a contrasting bouquet of red roses and sweet peas. In the role of best man was Brian Kintzer, also a student of Lebanon Valley and a member of the couple's class.

Palms, ferns and cut flowers added to the festive atmosphere. Among the guests were many of the college student friends of the bride and groom.

Following the nuptials a reception was held at the home of the bride, after which the couple set off on a brief honeymoon for the remainder of the groom's furlough.

Mrs. Schreiber is a Junior, and a Biology major. Pvt. Schreiber was formerly a member of her class, but left last February 22 for the Army. At present he is stationed at Alfred University, Alfred, New York, where he is studying basic engineering in the A.S.T.P.

After her honeymoon, Mrs. Schreiber will resume her college work, and her husband, his full furlough ended, will return to his post in the Army.

Faculty Votes Promotion Of LA VIE Cub Reporters

The Faculty passed favorably on the recommendation of the Editor of LA VIE COLLEGIENNE that the cub reporters be promoted to the rank of regular reporters.

Those affected by the change are: Madelyn Quickel, Sara Schott, Gerald Gruman, Eleanor Strauss, Claire Schaeffer, Lizette Fisher, Edna May Hollinger, Erma Loy, Elizabeth Jean Light and Malcolm Parr.

Dr. George Struble, head of the advisory committee for LA VIE, presented the recommendations at the regular Faculty meeting, Tuesday, February 1.

B. A. Hess, Anniversary President, Presides Over Clio Meeting

On Wednesday afternoon, January 26, at 1:00, Elizabeth Ann Hess, newly elected anniversary president of Clonian Literary Society, presided over her initial meeting, called for the purpose of Kappa Lambda Nu's sixty-third birthday.

Although there were rumors to the contrary, the organization has decided to hold a formal dance, as in previous years, observing the economies recommended by the administration. No definite date has been set, but the Hotel Hershey has been selected as the place for the affair. Soldiers from Indiantown Gap are expected to be the guests of the girls.

The following committees have been appointed to assist the anniversary president in her activities: Place—Betty Bartels and Janice Stahl; Orchestra—Laura Royce and Betty June Bomgardner; Programs—Eleanor Frezeman and Maeredith Houser; Publicity—Sarah Koury, Jeanne Bedger, Nancy Johns, and Sara Schott; Chaperones—Elizabeth Reiff; Alumni—Sarah Stauffer and Nancy Sattazahn; Transportation—Jeanne Wal-ler.

Dramatics

About four years ago, the Wig and Buckle Club held monthly meetings in Engle Hall. Features of these meetings were the discussions on drama, stage settings, make-up, sound effects, etc. In addition, there were always at least two one-act plays on the program. These meetings were only a part of the yearly calendar of the Wig and Buckle Club. The Club always assisted other campus organizations in planning their annual stage productions, as well as staged its own three-act drama.

The war has brought about a radical change in this program. No one in the college is to blame for the change. However, the campus has been unnecessarily robbed of some good stage productions, especially during recent semesters. The past semester rolled by with only one Wig and Buckle appearance—two one-act plays on Homecoming Day. The rest of the semester was wasted debating which play might be adopted as the best vehicle for one or two persons. Will we have to go through another playless semester, or will the Wig and Buckle be revived? We are not interested in seeing only personalities on the stage. We want a play which is not heavy, but relaxing. We want a good laugh. Hang the drama and character vehicles.

Blood Bank

Last week the Red Cross Blood Bank celebrated its first anniversary in Lebanon and Annville. During the first year of its local existence, the Bank received 2,834 pints of blood. We are proud to report that some of this was donated by students of Lebanon Valley College, how much, we do not know. As we look ahead to the second year of the Red Cross Blood Bank in the community, let us all resolve to support it to the best of our ability. One pint of blood will go a long way in the saving of a life on the battlefield. Let each of us pledge ourselves to save a life during the next year.

William Allen White

Democracy and the Democratic way of life lost one of its most ardent apostles with the passing of the late William Allen White, the Emporia journalist. He was not a colloquial. He was a citizen of the world. He saw and fought for the rights of men. But his concepts of democracy transcended the ideas of rights and equalities. Quoting Walter Lippmann: "His life is the proof that democracy is more than a method of government, and more than a bill of rights and more than the liberties and equalities of men. It is a fraternity which holds men together against anything that could divide them."

William Allen White was not a fanatic. He was a shrewd politician equipped with the powers of the press. He accepted democracy as a way of life and applied his politics and journalism to its preservation.

Exchange Material

Drexel students participated in the Fourth War Loan Drive by purchasing $97.00 worth of war bonds and stamps. A Defense Stamp Dance, held the afternoon of the opening day, was well attended, the door prize being $3.00 worth of defense stamps, and the admission being the purchase of a war stamp.

Muhlenberg College acted as host to Vaughn Monroe's Spotlight Band in the Rainbow Room at Crystal Park on January 27. "The Victory Parade of Spotlight Bands" is heard six nights a week from Army, Navy, Marine, Coast Guard and Merchant Marine Bases and from war production plants.

A recent experiment conducted by Kenneth M. Peterson of the Department of Education, Ohio State University, indicates that many college students are capable of doing more work than is ordinarily required of them. Furthermore, Mr. Peterson found that the students "handled a load beyond the average with little damage to themselves as regards health, use of leisure time, or participation in extra-curricular activities. They were thrilled to find that they could do more than they had heretofore realized."—I. P.

Civilian students in 674 approved colleges and universities this year totaled 460,849 as against last year's 750,233. This loss of 38.6% would have been much greater if women students had not flocked to the institutions in unusual numbers this fall.

In view of the demands of public schools, with an estimated shortage of 25,000 teachers, the current enrollments in teachers colleges are alarmingly slow.

DISC DATA

Years before Americans knew the true meaning of morale, the Russian army was paying close attention to ways and means of producing that quality in its members. In 1928 there was formed in the Moscow Central Red Army Club an outstanding singing group known as the Choir of the Red Army of the U.S.S.R. The purpose of this group was to follow the Red Army wherever it went, and keep at a high point the soldiers' morale. Outside of its official duties, the Choir became noted for its magnificent interpretations of folk and operatic music as well as martial songs. In 1936 the Order of the Red Banner was conferred on this organization as a token of the appreciation felt by the government for its most successful work.

Columbia has recorded six songs by this brilliant singing group. Anyone hearing these records will admit that never was there a body of men who sang with greater spirit and fervor than those who compose the Choir of the Red Army. A. V. Alexandroff, director of the Choir, has trained it to perfection. The shadings and interpretative quality is meticulous. All the tremendous reserve of fighting spirit and patriotism of these great soldiers is transferred to those who listen to their rich voices blending as one.

Among the six songs in the album are the Song of the Plains, The White Whirlwind, Le Chant Du Depart, Song of the Village Mayor, The Boatmen of the Volga, and The Marseillaise. The latter is one of the most thrilling songs ever written. Coming from the fiery French Revolution, this song has inspired men beyond reasonable control for decades. Now it is used to encourage the Red Army interchangeably with the Internationale. When one hears these records it is evident that a nation that can sing like the Russians can never be defeated by one that slaughters men who once sang Ode To Joy.

Confidential Causerie...

Comes again a new semester, and many are the signs . . . out in the open in broad daylight walk freshman couples . . . and Bill Siebert can come down to South Hall without any qualms of being seen by an illustrious upper-classman . . . but even a surer sign is the initiating of new frosh . . . the men day students are sure putting their youngest through the mill . . . one important second semester frosh tells me these "greenies" are much-h-h too cocky . . . but they'll live and learn!

The two basketball games last Saturday night gave us food for excitement . . . Waller played a tip-top game, to say the least . . . and Charlie Wolfe finally got his word in, at the last minute . . . soon to be one of Uncle Sam's representatives to the Axis, Bob Early, played a right fine game too.

West Hall had itself a time on Sunday night by celebrating Miss Lietzau's birthday . . . the cake was beautiful and the inscription on it touching.

Speaking of anniversaries, we mustn't forget to mention Francis' and Herman's. It's exactly one year now! Such constancy is the essence of . . . well, anyway, it's constancy.

What about that new combination we noticed over the weekend, Caroline and Don . . . seemed to be enjoying themselves, n'est ce pas.

Glenn Hall looked familiar back on campus . . . Grace Spangler would agree . . . and we were glad to see Ken Gerhart (and might we add, hear him).

Then, too, Frank Shupper shows up with a new date . . . come Shupper, you ought to share the wealth . . . it's not every fellow that can find them . . . what am I saying . . . it's the fellows that are harder to get than new tires, or almost . . . just skip it Frank.

In this institution, there are several rules, not many of course, but one of them stipulates at what time a gal is supposed to be in . . . this information is given particularly for Miss Kolb and Mr. Beidle.

Have all of you heard that "Tiny" Mumma spends her extra time memorizing the marriage ceremony in case she should ever want to get married in a hurry! That's what you might call "worthy use of leisure time." (Naturally, you remember your Seven Cardinal Principals—if not, see Dr. Stine.) Stone-gathering sent Elizabeth Kreiser afield and many were the results . . . the stone-gathering costume was quite chic, too.

Well, good old "rec" hour is back again, and we hope to stay . . . the fellows don't seem to have much initiative these days . . . perhaps due to the fact that "they're either too young or too old" . . . we admit that there are some exceptions . . . not to mention names.

Teacher, teacher, I declare . . . yes, it's true, Ruthie Hayerstock has, in a way, joined the ranks of pedagogy . . . how does it feel to be the instructor instead of the instructed, Ruth?

All of us (mainly including Housel) were most happy to see Doris Smith this past weekend.

Claire Schaeffer and Edgar Schnee seem to be on quite, should we say, friendly terms lately. His looking into space at "rec" hour wasn't just a daze.

CHAPLAINS OFFICE
U. S. NAVAL AIR STATION
CORPUS CHRISTI, TEXAS

8 January, 1944.

Dear friends:

Due to the strenuous duties we are facing these days as the war effort gathers momentum, we are using this means of acknowledging the many letters and Greetings that have come to Mrs. Deibler and myself and the boys during this great season of the year. Although many miles separated us during this season, we are greatly encouraged in the fact that we are trying to make our small contribution to the speedy ending of this terrible war. Nothing would be a greater pleasure than to write you a personal letter, but time does not permit doing this. Since many of the things I could say about my work would be repeated to each one I know that you will not object to a form letter. Before starting the service again I thought I knew how much receiving letters means when you are away from home. Accordingly, as many of you know, I did my best to keep letters going to the service men. Now that I am on the receiving end I only learn with a new meaning the importance of this work. Everybody in our department is on hand when themail arrives. How disappointed they are when no letter comes. One of the very fine and industrious Waves felt very badly when she didn't get a letter one day. I hurriedly wrote her a short note to boost her spirits and saw to it that it got to her desk before she went to the barracks that evening. To see her cheery smile the next morning was ample reward for the small act of kindness. Having said this, I know that you really believe me when I tell you that your correspondence has been appreciated. We thank you most sincerely for your thoughtfulness. Knowing that the more than 200 pieces of mail received also contained your prayers, we take greater courage to serve in these difficult times.

Our Weekly Meditation

"Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." St. Matthew 28:19.

My Task

It matters not what others do,
It is my task to see
My life is patterned in the mold
The Lord has planned for me.

It matters not what others think,
Or what the creed they claim;
It matters only that I live
To glorify God's name.

It matters not what others say
In ridicule or fun;
I want to live that I may hear
His words, "My child, well done."

It matters not my lot in life,
In sunshine, clouds, or rain;
If only Jesus has control,
Earth's greatest loss is gain.

Sgt. Frank Kuhn, '41 Reported Killed, Is Very Much Alive

Previously reported killed in action, Sgt. Frank Kuhn, '41, is as much alive as ever before, according to letters received by his sister and mother at their Camp Hill home.

After several letters failed to reach their destination, the War Department announced that Sgt. Kuhn was "killed in action." This was last October. In the meantime members of the family appealed to the Red Cross to investigate the case.

The investigation revealed that Sgt. Kuhn had been moved. The letters which had been sent to him did not follow him. Thus originated the report that he was killed.

"Frankie," as he was known on the Lebanon Valley College Campus, was one of the fighting Dutchmen of the gridiron during his college days. He was also prominent on the diamond and the basketball court.

The activities of any one day would be ample to fill a letter of this type. The Christmas season was a very busy one, as it always is in the Navy. Much is done to carry out the idea of joy and happiness. Christmas trees, decorations, programs, worship services, parties, and many other festivities are in full swing. The regular routine work also gathers momentum and so everyone is busy from morn until night. The day before Christmas is spent bringing all loose ends together. For me it was unusually busy because in addition to my already well laden schedule I had three weddings to take care of. At seven we rendered our S. S. Christmas pageant in the Chapel; at eight the choir rendered a Christmas concert in the theatre; at 9:30 Chaplain Miller and his family gave a buffet dinner to members of his department; at midnight we attended the Catholic Mass. At eight Christmas day I had to be on duty; at nine I attended the Protestant communion service; at ten the Children's Christmas party for over 400 children, 100 of these came from the colored, Mexican and American groups from the city; Santa Claus came by plane and was rushed to the theatre in a Jeep and, after he had spoken to the children, he led them to the hugh tree on the lawn and gave every child a present, assisted by sailors and Waves. The city children were given their dinner in the enlisted men's mess where I could eat. I assumed the day's watch duty at noon and stayed at the office until 9:30 in the evening. I had to be back at the Station at 8:30 Sunday morning, and conducted a service at 9:15 and Sunday School at 10. In the afternoon I called on 28 dependents of Naval personnel in the city hospital. Since Christmas we have been just as busy. At present I make two visits to the city hospital every week—Wednesday and Sunday afternoons. From two to three hours are required to see from 25 to 40 patients on each visit. Many of these patients are new moth-

Red Cross Chapter Organized Tuesday, January 25

On Tuesday, January 25, the Red Cross Unit of Lebanon Valley College met to complete its plans of organization. At the meeting, the projects which will be started on the campus in the near future, were discussed, and definite plans were made concerning them.

Besides the student aid in making Surgical Dressings, already in operation, four night classes in Canteen, Nutrition, Home Nursing and First Aid will be offered. The following information concerning the time and place of the courses was released by the president of the organization, Lizette Fisher:—Canteen, Tuesday at 7:00 P. M. in Room 16 of the Administration Building; Nutrition, Wednesday at 7:00 P. M. in the Annville High School; First Aid, Tuesday at 7:00 P. M. in the Administration Building; Home Nursing, Wednesday at 7:30 P. M. in Room 5 of the Ad. Building. The latter class will conduct weekly laboratory sessions in the College Infirmary. The teachers for the courses have not been announced to date, neither has the enrollment been completed.

The organization functions under the direction of D. Clark Carmean and Miss Esther Henderson with a student committee of Lizette Fisher, Chairman, Geraldine Huss, Vice-Chairman, Betty June Butt, Secretary, and Marian Ulmer, Treasurer.

Longer Leap Years

Librarians will make mistakes and can be forgiven on occasion, but here's a story which is too good to ignore.

The stamp was set for February 29. A book was being taken from the library. When Marjorie Frantz applied the stamp to the appropriate spot in the rear of the book, the date did not meet her fancy. She took her pencil and made it to read "February 30."

Can it be that Leap Year is too short for our Librarians?

Kania Kampaigns For Knitters' Klub

Joseph Kania was deeply moved in Dr. Stine's speech class when Helen Sattazahn made an appeal for Red Cross knitters.

Knitter Kania, '46, a New Jerseyite, expressed a hope that the men on the campus would cooperate with Miss Sattazahn. In fact, he proposed the organization of a Men's Knitters' Klub.

ting forth every effort at home to keep the war effort moving by working steadily every day and buying more bonds. During 1943 the men of the Navy alone bought over 300 million dollars worth of War Bonds. This year this amount will be many times larger. All of us working together without any waste anywhere will bring a speedier victory. I know that our prayers are united to this end.

Our sincere prayer and earnest wish is that you all may have a very Happy and Victorious New Year.

Very sincerely yours,
WALTER E. DEIBLER,

Cpl. "Tony" Ventresca, Blue and White Gridder, Wounded In Action

Cpl. Anthony "Tony" Ventresca, formerly of the class of '45, was wounded in action according to a report released by the War Department on January 17.

"Tony," a member of the United States Marine Corps, is remembered at Lebanon Valley College as a flashy back on the 1941 Blue and White grid squad. He came to Lebanon Valley College from Pottsville.

The Philadelphia Inquirer of January 18 carried the notice of Cpl. Ventresca's injury. Cpl. Ventresca paid a surprise visit to the campus yesterday.

CAMPUS CLUBS

WORLD CITIZENS

A County meeting of the World Citizenship Movement will be held Wednesday, February 9, at the home of Miss Katherine Hoffman, 538 N. 9th Street, Lebanon.

INK SPOTS

The Green Blotter Club will hold its monthly meeting on Thursday, February 10, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. George Struble. All new members are urged to attend.

RECRUITERS

The Life Work Recruits, at their monthly meeting on Sunday, January 16, decided to prepare deputations. In participating in these activities they will be rendering a great service to many churches and will be inspired themselves. Also, the presence of students of Lebanon Valley College will cause more interest in the present building and endowment campaign.

The recruits are also anticipating a banquet in connection with Seminary Day. Both regular and associate members of the L. W. R. and the cabinets of the Y. W. C. A. and the Y. M. C. A. are invited.

First to Lehigh, 51-38; Then Gettysburg, 59-38

Completely outclassed by the high flying bullets from Gettysburg College, Lebanon Valley's all civilian team took it on the nose again in a 59-38 contest staged on the Annville High court on January 29.

A former Hazleton high school star was the chief dampener of the Flying Dutchmen's hopes as Vince Parnell came through in his usual brilliant style to cop 28 points and high scoring honors for the evening. The "Rahway Express," Frankie Shupper, was his usual self with a good 19 markers for the unlucky hosts.

After a slow start which saw them led by a mere three points at the close of the first period, the visitors turned on the heat to rack up 21 points before the first half gun. This, plus the fact that Intrieri's men were limited to 6 and 8 points in the first two periods, was enough to give them a 30 to 14 lead at half time.

This was more than enough to break the back of Lebanon Valley, for although the victory-starved quintet from Annville was able to match their rivals in the ability to cut the cords in the second half, they were never quite able to overcome the large half time margin acquired by the Bullets.

The Gettysburg team, incidentally, came to Annville seeking their fourth victory in five starts and came away with just that. The Flying Dutchmen have now dropped their third straight tilt and should be in a favorable position for a bounce to the win column.

January 15 saw the Engineers from Lehigh University run rough-shod over a small but fighter Valley quintet, 51-38, on the Annville court. Majczan paced the winners with 28 points while Frankie Shupper tallied 22 for a lost cause.

Helen Traubel Of The Met. Delights Audience

The second concert in the Lebanon Community Concert Series was presented on January 24th. The soloist was the celebrated American soprano, Helen Traubel. It was an unforgettable evening with the audience literally breathless at the soloist's superb artistry.

For depth, power, and sheer vocal beauty Miss Traubel has no equal. Her program was well chosen and interesting, containing German Lieder and Wagner for which she is famous. The accompanist, Mr. Coennraad V. Bos, a musician in his own right, played with exquisite feeling.

The program was as follows: A Beethoven group: God Is My Song, Joy of Sorrow, and I Love You. Group II—Voi la sapeta by Manogni.

Group III—My Abode, Cradle Song, and Ecstasy by Schubert, and Rest Thee My Soul and Caecilie by Strauss.

After intermission Mr. Bos played Elegie by Rachmaninoff and Song Without Words (Duet in A flat) by Mendelssohn. The fifth group contained Elsa's Dream by Wagner. Her last group consisted of two Negro spirituals, Deep River and Swing Low Sweet Chariot, also Sea Shell, by Engel, A Memory by Fairchild, and Blow, Blow, Thou Winter Wind by Ilgenfritz.

Governing Bodies Begin 'Rec' Hours and Basketball

"Rec" hours are now in full swing, both at noon and every Tuesday evening, as the governing bodies forge ahead with their second semester projects.

The noon "Rec" hours, held every Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday from 12:30 to 1:30 in the Alumni Gym, are being sponsored by the M. D. S. C. and the W. C. C. The evening programs are sponsored every Tuesday from 6:30 to 7:30 P. M. by the W. S. G. A. and the Men's Senate.

Sterling Sanders, President of the M. D. S. C., has also announced the formation of a new Day Student Basketball League. There are three teams, each featuring freshmen as their chief claim to numbers.

Success in Reverse

The Rev. Mr. Ellsworth Snoddy was trying to find means of cutting down his college expenses, so he went to Carnegie Library in search of a volume on the subject.

He came across a book entitled, How to Get Through College On Nothing a Year, which he took along with him. It seemed as though his problem was solved, at least until Fate stepped into the picture. With success at his finger-tips, Mr. Snoddy lost the book. Now he will never know the secret of getting "through college on nothing a year." In addition, his bill for this semester has been raised the price of a book, payable to the Carnegie Library.

iron mines are within the bounds of iron for Bethlehem Steel, as long ago they did for the Hopewell, the Sally Ann, Elizabeth and many other furnaces.

"The German influence predominated in the beginning. We are trying to show the early German influence in this region through the medium of the presses, how late it persisted, how early the English influence came into the schools and churches.

"Just about four miles from Annaville at Sunnyside Mills in the eighties and nineties lived a farmer, miller, and schoolmaster, Henry S. Heilman. He was also especially interested in collecting books of the early German presses. In the fall of 1942, his heirs quietly said that the library was for sale; we were fortunate enough to acquire it. Purchased and presented to us by the President of our Board of Trustees, E. W. Funkhouser, we were able to align most of it with our main objective.

"The German presses are well represented. We have six imprints of the elder Saur, among them the Saur Bible of 1743 and a book which is even rarer than that, the Marburger Gesangbuch of 1757. We have many titles of the younger Saur, including three copies of the second, 1763, edition, of the Saur Bible, one imperfect, and two copies of the third, 1776, edition. There are also two-thirds of the titles of the Ephrata Cloister, among them, two editions of Bracht's Martyrer Spiegel, 1748. One has a frontispiece showing immersion as the mode of baptizing; the other, without this frontispiece, was a courtesy to the Mennonites who believe in sprinkling. This courtesy of one denomination for another occurs in various ways in the product of these early presses: the ABC und Namen-Buchlein of the Reformed and Lutheran churches, published in different places, differs only in the Lord's Prayer; the former begins the prayer with "Unser Vater . . .", the latter, "Vater unser . . ."

"Of what importance were the general books? In the Shenk Collection, we had already started a family library such as might be found on a farm or in a town home. The books are authenticated. The name of the original owner is in the front of each book. If we had a family library, why not a schoolmaster's library? That Mr. Heilman was interested in his various pursuits are shown by the textbooks and the books on agriculture. . . ."

•The Church-Related College Must Be Preserved For Post-War Services

Contrary to the attitudes at the beginning of this war, the church-related colleges are confident of their survival, so much so that they are now giving greater and deeper thought to their place in the post-war world. A two-fold question springs to mind in this regard: Why are the church-related colleges to be preserved for post-war service?

Let us consider first the why: Three reasons can be offered in answer to this question. First, the Church College is instrumental in the advancement of the liberal arts. The value of liberal arts is being much debated today. The debate is being waged between those who feel that mere factual education is sufficient and those who feel that there must be a medium of interpreting these facts into meaningful experience. The latter school defends the liberal arts which Dr. Conant of Harvard feels certain will survive. He bases his assumption on the probable reaction against technical subjects by post-war youth and on the American liberal arts tradition.

Second, the Church College is instrumental in the advancement of Christianity. Dean Stonecipher, in a recent contribution to the Telescope, remarked that, "A Church without Colleges would not long survive." This is quite true, but we must go a little farther and point out with him that this does not refer to mere denominationalism. Christianity in its wider sense is preserved through the religious traditions, curriculum and extra-curricular program of the Church College.

Third, the Church College tends to pay closer attention to the individual student. There is a closer teacher-student tie-up in the Church College. Directors of Religious Education are at hand for personal, religious, moral, and social guidance. In addition there is less tendency toward race discrimination in an institution whose fundamental traditions are Christian. Lebanon Valley College has always opened her doors to both Negroes and Jews. Only occasionally have there been instances of individuals on the campus whose ignorance and intolerance have made those of another race uncomfortable.

Dr. Lynch Announces Scholarship Exams For March 24-25

Dr. Clyde A. Lynch announced today that Lebanon Valley College will again conduct scholarship exams after having omitted them last year.

In pre-war years these exams were conducted on the weekend that coincided with the May Festival. However, since the May Festival has been eliminated for the duration, the exams have been moved up to Friday and Saturday, March 24 and 25.

More details are forthcoming in the next issue of LA VIE.

RUTH GRAYBILL

Graybill Obsequies Held Tuesday

Deceased Was An Honor Student in Class of '44

Funeral services for the late Ruth Graybill were held on Tuesday, February 15, at 2:30 p.m., in the Penbrook Grace United Brethren Church. The Rev. Dr. H. E. Scheaffer, pastor of the church, officiated. Burial was made at Shoop's Cemetery, Harrisburg.

Ruth, a member of the January, 1944, graduating class, was in ailing health for some time. Her illness became acute and necessitated her hospitalization last November. Her condition grew steadily worse and during the Christmas vacation Dr. Lynch, president of Lebanon Valley College, presented her with her degree in view of the fact that during her four years on the campus she was a member of the Dean's Honor Roll.

This step on the part of college authorities coupled with the kindness of Ruth's many classmates and friends who remembered her with Christmas greetings seemed to give her new hope, for she began to show signs of recovery. She was removed to her home in Penbrook last January where she continued to improve until her sudden relapse and death last Saturday, February 12. She was twenty-two years of age.

Coming to Lebanon Valley College as an honor graduate of John Harris High School, Harrisburg, Ruth continued her high academic work. Socially she was a member of the Clonian Literary Society, Biology Club, and Chem Club. She was a member of Penbrook Grace United Brethren Church.

Surviving are the deceased's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin B. Graybill; a brother, Midshipman Armor Graybill, United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Maryland, and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Graybill, Duncannon.

Red Cross Unit Students Near Sponsors Three Campaign Goal

First Aid, Home-nursing & Nutrition Courses Offered

Contributions to Date Total $1152.50

The Lebanon Valley College unit of the American Red Cross, which was officially recognized last January 14, is at present offering three courses to the students of the college according to an announcement made by the unit's chairman, Lizette Fisher.

A course in standard first aid is being offered under the leadership of Mr. John Haynes, nutrition under Miss Mary Fickes, and home nursing under Mrs. Harvey Snyder. These classes meet weekly in the Administration Building.

The members of the first aid class are: Sara Schott, Nancy Johns, Arlene Schlosser, Jean Bedger, Jacquelin McDonald, Mary Jane Wieland, Betty Ann Mayer, Martha Ross, Dorothy Evelev, June Carson and Carolyn Mease.

Members of the nutrition class are: Virginia Dromgold, Nora Goodman, Carolyn Moss, Mildred Emerich, Marian Kreider, Evelyn Spitler, Elinor Strauss, Jean Hudyma, Dorothy Smith, Mary Elizabeth Myers, Marian Shade, Elizabeth Bowman, Ruth Killian, Berenice Corbalis, Jeanne Kauffman, Nancy Sourman, Gladys Flinchbaugh, Barbara Kolb, Gale Horstick, Lois Goodling, Betty June Butt, Ethel Renzel, and Kathleen Eyster.

The home nursing students are: Phyllis Snyder, Lizette Fisher, Doris Sterner, Judith Ulmer, Jeanne Kitchen, Frances Workman, Gene Bowman, Lsther Wagner, Hazel Fornoff, Harriet Miller, Betty Brubaker, Helen Wennerholm, and Elizabeth Keriser.

Professor D. Clark Carmean and Miss Esther Henderson are the advisers of the L. V. C. Red Cross unit.

L. V. C.'s Student Endowment Campaign is nearing its goal of 100%. 91% of the students have responded with subscriptions.

From a total of thirty-seven seniors, thirty-five have handed in subscriptions, making a total of $291.

Forty-five juniors out of a possible fifty-one contributed with the total amount of $254.50.

There are forty-eight sophomores and forty-six have pledged a total of $361.50.

From a Freshman Class of fifty-one, forty-five students have responded, making a total of $245.50. The grand total for the entire college is $1,152.50.

Those students who left college at the end of the first semester have not been included in these statistics. Most of those who have not pledged their support have not as yet been approached. All committee members are urged to contact these students immediately.

The campaign in Lebanon County is progressing very well. Harold W. Risser is County Chairman, and the Assistant Chairman is Lloyd A. Sattazahn.

The contributors to this district are citizens of Lebanon County who are neither alumni nor members of the United Brethren Church. Some advance subscriptions included $100 from the Bon Ton; $25 from Ben Tuck, the first subscription; a $200 contribution from Maxwell D. Krause, and $2,000 from Messrs. Quinn and Worriow of the Lebanon Steel Foundry.

Church College

Having summarized our reasons in defense of the Church College, let us look at the now of our previously posed question. The Church College can be supported through three channels other than the income derived from student enrollments: the church, alumni, and others whose interest in the College have been aroused. The United Brethren Church is to be complimented for the manner in which it supported Lebanon Valley College in the present Building and Endowment Campaign. Both the Pennsylvania and the East Pennsylvania Conference are to be praised. As to the second party, the alumni, let it be said that a college without an interested and supporting alumni is dead. Though alumni reports in our Building Campaign have been slow in coming in, there are some favorable reports in alumni contributions. The contributions made by President Cowling of Carlton College and Dr. Ebersole, retired president of Cornell College, should serve to inspire the support of our present alumni as well as the support of those of us who hope soon to be alumni. Finally, there are those contributions which come from friends of the college who are neither members of the Church sponsoring the College nor alumni of the College. Their contributions are based on their regard for the Church College and its accomplishments. The Church-related College must be preserved for post-war service. This calls for the active support of everyone of its backers.

•Conserv Artists?

Reports of dissatisfaction have reached the writer concerning the choice of Conservatory artists whose pictures will appear in the coming Quittie. Conservatory students feel that the faculty would be more competent in working out a system of choosing the artists, and that a choice of this importance should not rest within the hands of a small group of students.

The committee, as chosen this year, was not truly representative of the entire Conservatory and allowed the prejudices of the individual members to interfere with the selections, as is evidenced by the determination to eliminate one student for purely personal reasons.

Music students also express the opinion that the Conservatory artist section should be limited to Conservatory students.

The consensus of opinion is that the method of selecting Conservatory artists should be changed, in order to insure equality of opportunity for all Conservatory students.

Exchange Material

Feeling that those people now engaged in the college training programs are preparing for war, and that ex-servicemen who wish to go to college after the war will be unprepared for normal college life, President Charles Seymour of Yale University announced recently that an Institute of Collegiate Study for Ex-Servicemen will be established at New Haven.

The returned veterans who attend the institute will be given special opportunities in their choice of quarters, and special guidance in their courses.

Three main objectives of the institute will be: provision of a general education of breadth and solidity; competence in a chosen field, which is neither vocational nor strictly professional, and the development of the habit of independent work.—I. C. P.

In his ethics class, Mr. Shultz, of Dickens College, asked, "What are the three Protestant additions to the Christian philosophy?" expecting the response, "Faith, hope and charity," when a student's reply was, "Love, honor and obey."—The Dickinsonian.

A new American educational system, as proposed by Dr. Edwin S. Burdell, director of Cooper Union, has been suggested to enable youth to

Our Weekly Meditation

*The glories of our blood and state
Are shadows, not substantial things;*

The recent death of Ruth Graybill draws our attention to the eternal truth of the words of James Shirley. Truly, Death the Leveller is no respecter of persons; age, position, color, or creed; none can stay our passing from this earthly state. Yet, knowing this, we continue to pattern our lives defiantly, as though we alone could break the bonds of death.

Ruth did not want to die any more than you or I. She shared our hopes and our dreams for the future. She saw these hopes crash. Her heart broke, but still she went on living; still she went on fighting, hoping, thinking, dreaming. But death was inevitable. Does this imply that all her living was in vain? . . . No.

She shared with us our Christian belief that though death is inevitable, it can not hold us through eternity. Christians do not bury their dead forever. Metaphorically speaking, they put them to bed. The Christian burial ground is called a cemetery, "a sleeping place." It stems from Christ's likening death unto sleep. After death, as after sleep, man is awakened to a new and fresher life. This is Christ's promise of immortality. It is the light that shatters the gloom accompanying the death of friends, of relatives, of loved ones. Let us look now upon the words of the Master who said:

. . . I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live;

And whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die . . .

Is this not a comforting thought? We need not resign ourselves to the inevitability of death. Faith in Christ will help us give the most to this life and carry us triumphantly through the "Valley of the shadow of death" to another world. As Christians, we believe that Ruth Graybill is not gone forever, but she stands on the threshold of a better world.—THE EDITOR.

Confidential Causerie. . .

Winter has put in its appearance at last, and high time too . . . all of us forgot our college "dignity" and had some fun for ourselves . . . chapped hands (and faces) seem to be the main result.

ST. VALENTINE PUTS IN HIS APPEARANCE

The dance on Friday night was the leading event of our Valentine celebration . . . neat decorations, but definitely, we all agree . . . and the work of Dan Cupid was quite in evidence . . . Kania and Eleanor Freezeman found mutual interests . . . the usual Kauffman-Hershey combination was in evidence, at least for a while . . . Lloyd Fagen beamed upon a lassie from Lebanon . . . and the committee looked on, too tired to do anything else.

Girls, did you note the corsage Betty June Butt returned from F. & M. bearing. Why can't we all be invited to Valentine parties that boast such attractions?

The post office was mighty crowded on Monday morning with all the co-eds expecting fond remembrances from their one and only's. Woe to the man who forgot to remember the occasion . . . his excuse better be good.

FROM THE SNOOPER'S WASTE BASKET

We can't help mentioning that David Sheetz was elected class wolf at Hershey High. Maybe that yellow plaid jacket did the trick!

Latest thing on records is the sound of Miles Harriger's voice . . . Phil hasn't quite worn out the record but if you haven't heard it yet, we'd suggest doing it soon before the risk is worn too thin.

What about the female most frequently seen with Jack Wolfe . . . sort of different on campus!

By the way, Jean Bedgar condescended to go out with a man Saturday last . . . will improbabilities never cease happening . . . the men of the campus please note: you may be lucky enough to date her if you try.

Epic making history took place in North Hall when Nancy Saurman and Barbara Kolb finally decided to clean house . . . they found almost a case of coke, milk, pepsie, etc. bottles, and in general their room is no longer recognizable . . . then too, that picture, or should I say poster, of Dale knocks you down when you enter the place . . . right good picture of the man though . . . brings back sweet memories of the good old summer time.

Rettew favored some of his admirers by sending them reasonable facsimiles of himself this week past . . .

Jackie MacDonald gets around these days . . . the new frosh seem to think she's pretty nice . . . but who doesn't.

Sanders was in his element over the week-end . . . the big moment from Wilmington was occupying his time, most definitely!

Did you notice the ballerina effect that Josie Bittner created the other day. Her long cocoa stockings caused quite a stir . . . but they may have been an asset in her hopping hobby.

Hartz gave advice to the frosh fems on how to get rid of a man no longer deemed worthy of attention. Maybe she could arrange another series of lectures for those of us who missed her first.

Fifi and some other South Hall lassies went skating to wear off some excess energy . . . was the attraction skating or uniforms!

But the snow of the afternoon has effected the ability of your columnist to concentrate . . . thus endeth the gossip.

Servicemen Write

Each week LA VIE COLLEGIENNE will print letters from boys in the service. If you have a letter which might interest the student body or other servicemen receiving LA VIE please hand it to Sam Beamesderfer or Frances Workman.

February 2, 1944.

Dear Prof. Rutledge:

It's no use to put my address at the top of this letter because it is to change at the end of this week. Right now I have no idea what it will be, but if I send it to you, do you think I could have copies of the "Daily Trombone" sent to me? It sure was swell to hear about all the kids and know where some of the fellows are. This is the closest I've been to school since I've been in the Army and I had hoped to get over to visit before I had to leave, but time passes so fast and first thing you know you find yourself with a set of orders in your hands and about one day to pack and get yourself, maybe half way, across the country. But with all the rushing and then waiting, I love it and wouldn't trade this Army for anything.

Wish I could have gotten to hear the concert. It looked good to see some of those familiar names on the program, especially Jessie's, since I haven't heard from her in well over a year. I'm glad to see she's still around. Do you suppose you could give her my address when I find out what it is and persuade her to drop me a line? I sent her a Christmas card, but since I didn't hear from her, I guess she must have moved.

There's not much I can tell you about the work we do her because it's all military information and secret. From here I'm going to Special Service School and then on to a new assignment—where, I have no idea. Had to take time out to go play basketball and take a dip with the girls. The girls work in three shifts on twenty-four hour duty, so we try to have as much in the line of recreation as we can. Their work is very important,

"Upbeat in Music," Latest March of Time, Coming Here Soon

A picture certain to appeal to every musical taste is the latest March of Time, "Upbeat in Music," coming Friday and Saturday, February 18-19, to the Astor Theatre, here.

In a series of candid studies, the film tells what music and musicians are doing to help the war effort. These include a sequence showing Koussevitzky conducting the Boston Symphony, the late great George Gershwin heard playing his smash hit, "I Got Rhythm," Marian Anderson's lovely voice, Benny Goodman's rocking rhythm, the suave singing of Perry Como, and informal portraits of Bea Wain, Art Tatum and others. The stars' wartime contributions make this a musical field day for audiences of every type and age.

Second Semester Competitions Begin For Day Students

Schnee's Quintet Defeats Kintzer's Lads in Opener

Competition got under way in the second installment of the Day Student Basketball League on February 2, when a team headed by Edgar Schnee defeated the charges of Brian Kintzer, 50-38. February 7 saw Kintzer's quintet spoil Gabe Frank's debut as a captain to the tune of 58-23.

Led by Big "Hank" Detweiler who took a busman's holiday from the college varsity, Schnee's men notched a clean-cut victory over "Chink" Kintzer's outfit. As if Hank's 23 points were not enough to show his teammates the way to victory, his diminutive running mate, Bob Bashore, chipped in with 15 markers to complete the rout. Malcolm Parr was high man for the losers with 18 tallies followed by Ted Lenker with 10.

Kintzer's Mighty Mites jumped from the red side of the ledger to the black by virtue of their overwhelming win over Gabe Frank's operatives. Having built up a terrific 33 to 5 lead at half-time, the conquerors were content to coast the rest of the way in, despite the fact that Gabe Frank put on a one man show in the second half for a final accumulation of 9 field goals. The Mites boasted a trio of heavy scorers in Malcolm Parr with 26 pointers, Ted Lenker with 15, and Russ Gingrich with 10.

CARNEGIE ADDITIONS

Since the start of the second semester, January 24, an unusually high number of additions has been made to the Lebanon Valley College Library—203 books of fiction and non-fiction, new books recently published, older ones which were required, and forty children's books. The children's books, which date from 1804 to 1890, are being used to build up an historical collection.

Included among the other accessions is the gift from the Lebanon Rotary Club, Preston E. James' book: Latin America. Decatur of the Old Navy, by Helen Nicolay, which adds to the Library's store on the Pennsylvania Dutch, has been purchased, and so has Morley Robert's life of the author of Green Mansions, entitled, W. H. Hudson, a Portrait. Some of the other additions are: Antonine Vallentin's, Leonardo Da Vinci, Eddy Sherwood's A Portrait of Jesus, Mark Van Doren's Liberal Education, Wendell Willkie's One World, and Joseph Klausner's From Jesus to Paul.

Gabe Frank's Five Upsets Schnee-Men

Gabe Frank's surprising quintet toppled Edgar Schnee and his men from the ranks of the undefeated on February 9, by the score of 33-24.

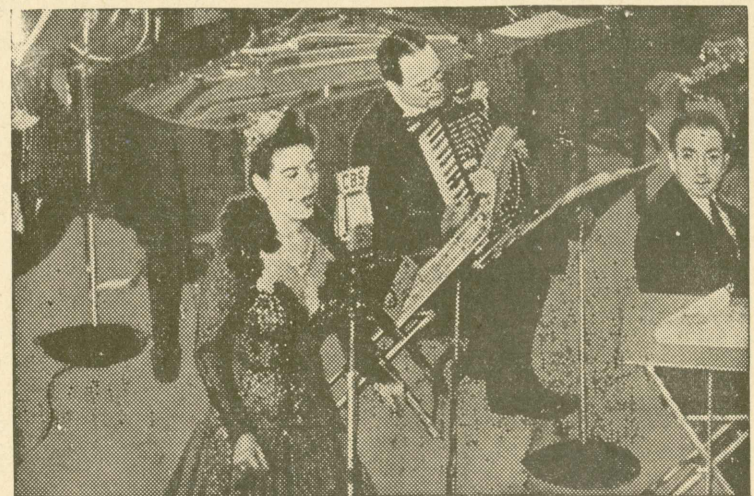

Exhibiting a tight defense that enabled them to lead their rivals by an 11-8 count at half-time, Gabe's hoopers turned on the heat in the final period, the result being 22 points and the ball game. Captain Frank paced his team with 17 markers while the presence of Bob Early was keenly felt through 10. The defeat of Schnee brot about a three way tie for top position in the league, each team now having lost one and won the same number.

D. S. LEAGUE STANDINGS

	Won.	Lost	Perc.
Kintzer	1	1	.500
Schnee	1	1	.500
Frank	1	1	.500

Men of the U. S. armed forces are demonstrating they can appreciate and in many cases perform, music of the highest complexity, says The March of Time's "Upbeat In Music." Above is Sergeant Eugene List, heard in the film playing the Rachmaninoff Concerto in C Minor.

Bea Wain, song star of radio's "Hit Parade," and a favorite with our troops, is shown putting a torrid number on the air in a scene from March of Time's "Upbeat In Music."

What Kind Of Music Do Our Boys Prefer?

After the initial shock of war, one of our first discoveries was that boys in scattered outposts sometimes get restive, especially under enforced inaction.

America's war production was in high, but here was a factor that hadn't been counted on. Washington gave thought, came back with the answer—music! A simple solution, it would appear, but as the March of Time film, "Upbeat In Music," reveals, it wasn't so simple.

What kind of music to send? Army bands? Or did the boys want hot jazz? And what of the wide audience of music-lovers in service who had learned to love the great symphonies? Did the boys want, perhaps, just some good rollicking songs to sing, like "Tipperary"? Perhaps they wanted phonograph records? Or would only live music, made by themselves or some of their number, do the trick?

The powers-that-be called in the top names in the world of music, and together they went into a huddle. Some of the things they talked about have been carried out with striking success, as the film shows. But the most interesting disclosures made by the film concern the kinds of music our boys prefer.

And what kinds are those? Every kind. Huge auditoriums of service men listen attentively to Sergeant Eugene List as he plays Rachmaninoff's Concerto in C Minor. Troops swing out to the spirited newstyle marches of Captain Glenn Miller's Army Air Force Band. Men on leave and their sweethearts crowd around Benny Goodman's bandstand. And somewhere in the Pacific, a little group is huddled around a phonograph, listening to one of the Army "V-Discs," this one a hot jazz selection.

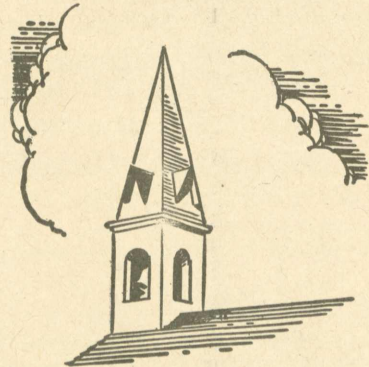

Yes, U. S. music has gone to war. Whether it be the Boston Symphony as it responds to the master touch of Serge Koussevitzky, the sprightly pianistics of Art Tatum, the songs of Perry Como, the genius of Elman, or the Hit Kit song sheets and tonettes that help the boys furnish their own music, the end is the same—high morale and the continued will to win.

The late George Gershwin, making an almost unique film appearance in this issue, might hear his "I Got Rhythm," played in Italy or sung in Tarawa. Marian Anderson's lovely voice thrills thousands of our troops over the airwaves. Bea Wain puts over a hot number for the boys. Musicians everywhere, famous or obscure, lend their talents for the common cause.

Their efforts are not in vain. Perhaps this explains, too, why our boys like all this music, however varied it might seem to the insensitive ear. Is it because running through it all, they detect a common theme, a song of victory?—Ad.

Private Robert Breen, a '41 grad, is currently spending a furlough at his home in Lebanon. Private Breen is stationed at Camp Sibert, Alabama, with the Chemical Warfare Service.

Second Lieutenant Richard Immler, '43, visited the campus last week as part of a ten day leave. From Wednesday to Sunday of last week he was the guest of his fiancée, Dorothy Landis, at her home in Myerstown. Sunday, Lieutenant Immler left for Baltimore to spend a few days there with his parents before returning to Camp Sutton, N. C., where he is stationed with the Army Engineers.

Robert Zimmerman recently left school for his home in Fredericksburg, Pa., where he will await induction into the U. S. Navy. Bob became a Junior with the beginning of the second semester, and was a major in music.

Corporal Mark Arnold, Jr., class of '46, who is in the Army Advanced Radio School at Boca Raton Field, Florida, is now enjoying a 15-day leave in Lebanon, February 3 to 18.

Lizette Fisher was the guest of Marjorie Frantz at the latter's home in Lebanon, the weekend of February 11.

Clare Schaeffer got her first view of the ocean during the weekend of January 28 when she took a trip thru New Jersey with family friends.

Jean Bedger, '47, addressed the Schaefferstown Tri-Hi-Y club Wednesday night, February 9. Miss Bedger, State Tri-Hi-Y president of last year, has done much work in organizing and re-organizing such groups.

Y.W.C.A. Organizes Frosh Cabinet; B. J. Butt, Pres.

A recently organized branch of the "Y.W." is the Freshman Y Cabinet, which meets regularly every Wednesday at 1:00 o'clock in the Y Room. Their duty is to carry on activities in conjunction with the Y.W. Their latest undertaking was the Heart-sister Week activities.

With Betty June Butt as president and Barbara Kolb as secretary, the other members are: Sara Schott, Ethel Rentzel, Nora Goodman, Madalyn Quickeee. The vice president of the Y.W.C.A., Marjorie Frantz, acts as adviser.

La Vie Collegienne Adds Cubs and Typist to Staff

The news staff of LA VIE COLLEGIENNE has announced several additions to its personnel for the second semester. Three new cub reporters have been taken on, and also a much needed typist.

The cub reporters will become full-fledged reporters upon the recommendation of the faculty after they have had sufficient news writing experience. The new additions are: Johanne Klick, Elizabeth Bowman, and Gilda Tulli. The typist position was filled by Gale Harstick.

Any other new students, or old ones, who wish to become members of the staff of LA VIE COLLEGIENNE should contact Betty Bartels or Christine Mumma.

CAMPUS CLUBS

BIOLOGY CLUB

An interesting DuPont film entitled "Guardians A Plenty" will be the highlight of the next meeting of the Biology Club, to be held Thursday, February 17, at 7:30, in the biology lecture room. As an added feature, Blossom Levitz will give an extended news talk.

CHEMISTRY CLUB

A special chemical demonstration will be the main feature of the next meeting of the Chemistry Club, Thursday, February 24, in the chemistry lecture room.

DELPHIAN

Anne Adams, Delphian Anniversary President, announced that the Delphian Dance would be held on March 18 in the Social Room of the Hershey Community Building.

Either soldiers from Indiantown Gap or marines and sailors from Franklin and Marshall College will act as escorts.

Music will be furnished by Herm Miller's Orchestra from Reading.

CLAO

Betty Ann Hess, Clio Anniversary President, announced March 4 as the date set for the Clio Dance.

W. C. C.

Blossom Levitz has been appointed senior representative to the W. C. C. board by President Elizabeth Jean Light. She will fill the vacancy left by Verna Stonecipher, who graduated in the January class.

Heart Sister Gayeties

Eleanor Strauss

Evidences of the traditional Heart Sister Week sponsored by the Freshmen Y. W. Cabinet were seen throughout the girls' dormitories and day-student rooms during the entire week from February 7 to February 14.

Every day of the week, the co-eds found nice things being done for them by an unknown benefactress. In the dorms, girls found their rooms put in order when offerings of food and chewing-gum appeared on desks as if placed by some friendly gremlin who had just passed by. There were many lucky girls who even received some much coveted bobby-pins.

One patriotic senior developed a unique system of conserving materials. She packaged her gifts with a layer of funny papers, covered by part of a burlap bag, tied with twine.

There's also the story of the pretty freshman from North Hall whose Heart Sister gave her some timely hints thru the medium of a Good Housekeeping magazine—and we do mean the tall, dark Frosh who goes places with the tall dark Junior.

One day-student girl received a mysterious telephone call which told her not to bring lunch the following day. When she arrived the next day, a sumptuous lunch awaited her in her locker. Another of her now prized possessions is the adorable rainbow colored "beanie" she received on the final day—her heart sister was her best friend at L. V.

"Ohs" and "Ahs" of surprise were expressed on Friday when the great mystery was solved,—and everyone finally discovered the identity of her heart-sister.

The big wind-up occurred during the week-end with the numerous parties. The Day students started things rolling at their noon-time "get-together" with ice cream, Early's pretzels 'n everything. Then on Friday evening all the students (men too) met in the gym for a rollicking time in a veritable "land of hearts." There was a booth for refreshments, music by the best orchestras a la nickelodeon and a game room which provided amusement for all.

Sunday evening concluded the week's events with the dormitory blow-outs. West Hall had its weekly diary, South Hall had an original sketch, and North Hall's main attractions were a Queen of Hearts and a gift-laden table whose centerpiece was a huge red heart bearing pictures of all the "fem's" latest heart-throbs.

ing back at my college days, I recall quite a bit of controversy about the Indian question. The information on hand at that time on the situation was plentiful, but confusing. Here I have been able to accumulate an abundance of exacting information from first-hand sources.

India consists of very many provinces, which are divided mainly into two groups, the native states and British India. British India consists of those states which have agreed to provincial contracts with the British Empire, while the natives have not. The native states have, therefore, a more independent feeling. The states or provinces are composed of peoples of different law groups. The rivalries between tribes is far more pronounced than that of our states.

Remember, India has 100 written and spoken languages. Of these eight are so essential in business that all Indian currency has the denomination written in these eight languages, namely,—Urdu, Hindustani, Bengali, Burmese, Tamil, Telegu, Kanarese, Gujarathies. English, Urdu, and Hindustani are the most prominent languages of India.

There are some prominent groups, essentially tribal and racial, which are of extreme interest. The two main warrior groups are the Sikhs and Gurkas. The Sikhs are a religious and tribal group which are almost entirely warriors. They do not cut their hair or beards at all. They keep their hair together with a wooden comb and wear a distinct, tight fitting turban which tends to give them a suave appearance. They are much taller and more sturdy than the average Indian. They neither smoke nor drink, perhaps that accounts for their physical condition. They are a highly respected group. All of the regulations I have listed are part of their religion.

The Gurkas are a very fierce warrior group. Their main weapon is a knife called a ghurki, which is approximately 18 inches long with a peculiar bend in it. A Gurka warrior is under sacred oath not to draw his knife unless he intends to get blood on it. Even if they clean it, they intentionally cut some part of their body so as to fulfill their vow. In order to become a full fledged warrior, a Gurka must be able to decapitate a bullock (an animal similar to an ox) with one blow. They can also throw this weapon with deadly accuracy. They have definitely distinguished themselves in this war. They are of small stature but stocky. Their features are essentially Mongolian since they are descendants of a group of immigrants from Tibet.

These are the two most colorful warrior groups. I'll continue my description of India in my next letter, as time doesn't permit me to write more at present. There is very much more to tell, especially in the religious and political field. For the present, goodbye until my next letter.

With all my love,
PETER.

Hello Prof.,

Again I have transferred back into the Music Field. I wonder what the drawing power is.

We have a pretty rigid music schedule, but then, what could be better than that? I believe Clyde Whitmeyer and Cohen have left Ft. Lewis. That makes ours the only band on the Post.

It has been eight months since I have seen the L. V. campus. I suppose all of my classmates are almost class A teachers by now.

I wouldn't feel too badly about the Tenor and Bass section. After all, they will be a dime a dozen when the War is over.

I would have to be in the Army when Red McCarthy finally got an engagement on L. V. C's campus.

Incidentally, what has happened to John Talmack? I still would like to have his embouchure.

There are some very good music programs in Seattle. I saw Iturbi last week-end. They also have a very good local Symphony Orchestra.

I suppose you have heard from Clyde that the State of Washington is very appealing.

Please give my regards to Miss Gillespie and anyone else who may remember me.

Very sincerely yours,
SMYSER.

P. S.—The "Daily Trombone" certainly helps a lot, especially after being 3,000 miles away.

We have a pretty rigid music schedule, but then, what could be better than that? I believe Clyde Whitmeyer and Cohen have left Ft. Lewis. That makes ours the only band on the Post.

It has been eight months since I have seen the L. V. campus. I suppose all of my classmates are almost class A teachers by now.

I wouldn't feel too badly about the Tenor and Bass section. After all, they will be a dime a dozen when the War is over.

I would have to be in the Army when Red McCarthy finally got an engagement on L. V. C's campus.

Incidentally, what has happened to John Talmack? I still would like to have his embouchure.

There are some very good music programs in Seattle. I saw Iturbi last week-end. They also have a very good local Symphony Orchestra.

I suppose you have heard from Clyde that the State of Washington is very appealing.

Please give my regards to Miss Gillespie and anyone else who may remember me.

Very sincerely yours,
SMYSER.

P. S.—The "Daily Trombone" certainly helps a lot, especially after being 3,000 miles away.

Quittie Editor Answers Editorial

There seems to be some misunderstanding concerning the choice of the Conservatory Artists. In the first place, the Quittie devotes this section to OUTSTANDING STUDENTS who are talented in all subjects, but who are pictured with the instrument with which they do their best work. This has been misinterpreted by the student body for many years and should now be clarified. The individual is not chosen for a particular talent in one field, but rather for ability in all things in the Conservatory.

Secondly, these people are selected by a representative group of faculty and students who are able to judge them in their all-around ability from both points of view.

Thirdly, all those in the Conservatory are students in the Conservatory.

Lastly, the results of this selection were supposed to be kept secret until the time of the publication of the Quittie.

The war is tough on absent-minded professors too!

Because the army demands promptness, a Westminster College, New Wilmington, Pa., professor was hurrying along to meet his scheduled history class for army cadets. In one hand he carried some letters to be mailed. In the other hand he had his grade book and quiz papers to be returned to the cadets.

As he rounded a corner he stopped at a mail box. He did not discover until he got to his classroom that he had mailed his grade book and test papers and brought the letters with him.

It was a shame-faced prof who later went to the post office to reclaim his property and mail the letters.—A. C. P.

Soloist

ERICA MORINI

Community Concert Held March 2 Is Third Of Season

Erica Morini, violinist, was the soloist for the third Community Concert of the season which was held Thursday, March 2, 1944, at 8:15 P. M., in the Lebanon High School Auditorium.

Miss Morini has been acclaimed "Queen of Fiddlers" and she truly upheld that reputation. In a review of a concert in St. Louis, the St. Louis Globe states: "It is all but impossible to believe that a woman could evoke that big and powerful tone she coaxes from her Stradivarius. It is a brilliant, firm tone. Sure, pure, beautiful, astringent, never over-sweet. A tone that leaps and plunges in sparkling cascades like a mountain torrent." The same can be said of her concert in Lebanon.

Miss Morini is master of both style and technique. Outstanding in her performance was the grace and elasticity of her bowing, the excellence of the quality of her tone in the high positions. The audience was thrilled with her playing. Special mention must also be made of her spiccato bowing. Following is the program:

Faculty, Administration Contribute 100 Per Cent To Building Campaign

The Faculty and Administrative Officers of Lebanon Valley College have made a 100 per cent contribution to the Building and Endowment Campaign. Every professor and officer has contributed to this victory.

The amount raised among the Faculty and Administrative Staff is $5880, according to figures released by Campaign Headquarters.

Dr. Samuel H. Derickson, Professor of Biology, headed this phase of the Campaign. He was assisted by Dr. H. H. Shenk, Professor of History, and Dr. G. A. Richie, Professor of Bible and Greek.

Missionaries To Open LVC's S. W. F. Project

On Tuesday and Wednesday, March 13 and 14, Lebanon Valley College will welcome to its campus Rev. Samuel G. Ziegler, General Secretary of the U. B. Foreign Mission Society, and Dr. Hovermale of the U. B. Home Mission Board. Both men will be chapel speakers and will open the 1944 Student World Friendship Project.

The Student World Friendship Project is supported by Otterbein College, Lebanon Valley College, Indiana Central College, York College, Shenandoah Junior College and Bonebrake Theological Seminary. It began in 1927 when the students of the United Brethren colleges contributed a fund to the support of Albert Academy, a secondary school for boys at Free-town, West Africa.

In 1930, the students of the supporting institutions decided to change the plan and raise a fund large enough to support a student representative, selected from the student body of the College contributing the most to the fund, to go to Africa to teach for a term of two years. The amount needed for such an endeavor is $1,000, divided as follows: salary, $750, and transportation, $250.

Those who have been sent to teach at Albert Academy are: Helen Cole Young, Otterbein '32, (1932-34); Chester O. Goodman, Lebanon Valley College '33, (1935-37); Vaughn Leamin, York College '41, (1938-40), and Vaseline Babbit, Indiana Central College '41, (1941 to date).

The local campaign is being directed by Sarah Stauffer of the YWCA and James Flinchbaugh of the YMCA.

Dr. Hovermale and Rev. Ziegler have also announced that in addition to launching the Student World Friendship Campaign, they will interview all students manifesting an interest in the missions, both foreign and domestic.

County Ministerium Meets In Carnegie Library Basement

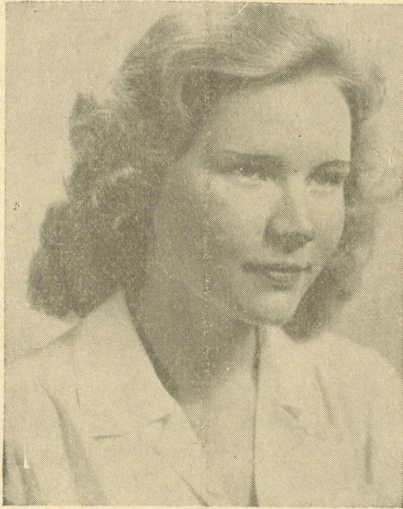

The Lebanon County Interdenominational Ministerium held its monthly meeting at Lebanon Valley College on March 6 in the basement of the Carnegie Library. The purpose of the meeting was to hear a discussion concerning the present financial campaign of the college.

President Clyde A. Lynch presented a speech indicating the value of Lebanon Valley College as an institution of Lebanon County. The second item was an address by Miss Helen E. Myers, Librarian, on the Heilman Book Collection.

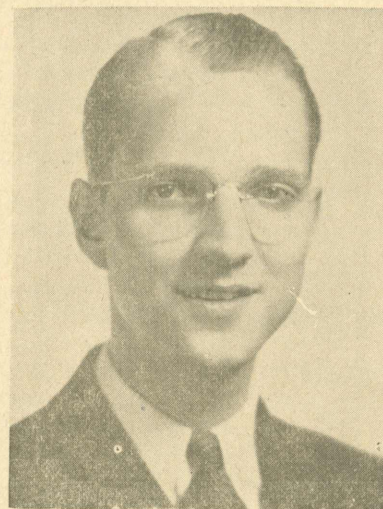

After the meeting the members of the ministerium went to the second floor to inspect the various books of interest. President Lynch invited the members to use the facilities of the library in the future.

Assisting Miss Myers in the inspection were Miss Verna Mutch, Marjorie Frantz, Ruth Killian, and James Flinchbaugh.

WEDDING DATE ANNOUNCED

VERNA P. STONECIPHER

R. HOWARD PAINE

Dr. and Mrs. A. H. M. Stonecipher have mailed invitations announcing the wedding of their daughter, Verna P. Stonecipher (left), '44, to R. Howard Paine (right), '43, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Paine, Lebanon. The ceremony will be performed on Sunday, March 26, at 4:00 P. M., in the Annsville United Brethren Church.

A general invitation to the wedding is being hereby extended through LA VIE COLLEGIENNE, of which the groom-to-be was Associate Editor, to the students of the College.

President's Tea

Dr. and Mrs. Clyde A. Lynch entertained Lebanon Valley College students at a tea held at the President's home Wednesday, March 8, from 2:30 to 5:30 in the afternoon.

The tea was planned for members of the four college classes, and the president and his wife were assisted in the receiving line by the class presidents, Gerald Kaufman, Geraldine Huss, Joseph Kania, and Betty Jean Butt.

Girl students of each of the four classes served as "floaters." Presiding at the tea tables were Mrs. A. H. M. Stonecipher, Mrs. P. A. W. Wallace, Mrs. V. Earl Light, and Miss Esther Henderson.

An atmosphere of real entertainment pervaded throughout the afternoon with a trio of Jeanne Waller, Maeredith Houser and Elizabeth Reiff furnishing the music, and Betty Minnich rendering some dramatic readings.

For the occasion, the home was decorated with colors suggestive of spring and with spring flowers.

Miss Gillespie Attends Conference of Music Educators in St. Louis

Miss Mary E. Gillespie, Director of the Conservatory of Music, was a delegate to the Music Educator's Conference held at St. Louis, Missouri.

She was a member of the music educator's curriculum group which on March 2 set up problems to be discussed at closed and open meetings. Representatives to this conference came from various colleges throughout the country.

On the schedule were concerts by high-school bands, orchestras and glee clubs. There were lectures by well-known educators, and clinics in band, orchestra and vocal music.

One evening was spent discussing music in the Army, another in American folk dancing. Choral works were featured one evening with the members as the chorus.

Delphians Dance On Saturday, March 18, At Community Club

The members of the Delphian Literary Society have completed the plans for their Anniversary Dance to be celebrated March 18 in the Social Room of the Hershey Community Club, when they will have as their guests a group of soldiers stationed at Indiantown Gap.

Miss Anna Adams, Anniversary President, chose the following committee chairmen to assist her in preparing for the dance: Place—Caroline Matter; Orchestra—Berenice Corbalis; Programs—Virginia Dromgold; Transportation—Emma Catherine Miller; Chaperone—Grace Spangler; Alumni—Lizette Fisher.

The chaperones for the dance will be: Miss Gillespie, Mr. and Mrs. Intieri, Dr. and Mrs. Stonecipher, Prof. and Mrs. Rutledge, Dr. and Mrs. Derickson, Prof. and Mrs. Carmean, and Dr. and Mrs. Richie. Music will be furnished by Herman Miller's Orchestra of Reading.

Hazel Fornoff, Senior, Announces Recital With College Orchestra

Hazel Fornoff, senior, will present an evening of organ music, March 23, in Engle Hall. Included in the programme is the Concerto Gregoriano by Pietro Yon. The college orchestra, under the direction of Prof. D. Clark Carmean, will accompany her in this number.

Other selections are: Bach—Toccatto and Fugue in D minor; Fawkes—Legend of the Mountains; and Franck—Chorale in A minor.

Pres. Lynch Sets March 24 and 25 For Exams

20 Scholarships Offered To High School Seniors

President Clyde A. Lynch has announced that, after being cancelled last spring, the annual competitive examinations for scholarships to be awarded to high school seniors will again be conducted on the Lebanon Valley College Campus on Friday and Saturday, March 24 and 25.

All high school seniors who are in the upper third of their respective classes are eligible to compete. The following scholarships, to be applied equally over a period of four years in either the College or Conservatory of Music, are being awarded:

Five full-tuition scholarships of $1200; five half-tuition scholarships amounting to $600 each; and ten additional scholarships of $400 each.

Any of the present college students knowing of prospective students who might be interested in these exams are urged to contact Dr. Clyde A. Lynch immediately. Those prospective who are interested in the Conservatory of Music should apply as soon as possible so that they may be scheduled for auditions on Friday, March 24.

Examinations will also be conducted on March 25 at the following places: Pottsville High School, Pottsville, Pa.; Hagerstown High School, Hagerstown, Md.; Barrington High School, Newark, N. J.; Camden High School, Camden, N. J.; Sunbury High School, Sunbury, Pa.; and Baltimore, Md.

Men Day Students' House

Certain recent events make it necessary for us to define the use of the Men Day Students' House on Sheridan Avenue. The first floor is set aside for men day students as a lounge, study, and game room. It is nothing else. It is not a date parlor for either day or dorm students, especially after 6:00 P.M. The second floor consists of offices and a private apartment. As to the offices, there are three: One for the Alumni Secretary, Dr. Balsbaugh; one for the Publicity Department under Rev. Sponseller; and one for LA VIE COLLEGIENNE. The latter two have recently been missing some of their materials which include envelopes, paste, folders, etc. The materials found in these offices are not for consumption by anyone except those people connected with the Publicity Department, the Alumni Office, and LA VIE COLLEGIENNE, respectively. The cooperation of all students is urged in an effort to keep the Men Day Students' House in line with its defined purpose.

Orchids

Every now and then a new thing pops up on campus and serves its brief span before retiring forever from the scene of action, carrying with it the term "fad." Within recent weeks, however, there has arisen an innovation which we feel is more than another fad—the choral speaking project. The chapel program several Fridays ago deserves every possible praise, both for the leader and her associates. It is gratifying to note that plans have been made for a continuation of this kind of work on the Lebanon Valley College campus. Already, an organization has been formed to promote an up-and-coming campus activity. Orchids to Bud Hershey.

Finances

The purpose of this editorial is not one of mere fault finding: on the contrary, it is presented as a suggestion to the powers-that-be, either the Student-Finance Committee or the College Treasurer, for the establishment of a more practical method of financing LA VIE COLLEGIENNE. With the present system, our Business Department functions under a dual financial set-up. All funds from the student activities fund are retained in the College office while the income derived from ads and other sources is deposited in an account at the Annville National Bank. It has happened that several times during the last semester our Business Manager has had to postpone balancing her books because certain bills turned over to the Treasurer's Office for payment from the student activity fund had not yet been paid. As a result, everyone has been pretty much in the dark concerning the number of LA VIE issues remaining to be printed. The embarrassments suffered were by no means few.

Thus, our suggestion is this, that there be established but one fund for LA VIE COLLEGIENNE. Let this fund be taken care of by the Business Manager, whose books would be subject to balancing by a student-faculty committee twice a year. In addition, to reduce the fear that such funds might be misappropriated, the persons responsible for the use of these funds should be bonded. This, it seems to us, is the only business-like way of financing LA VIE.

DISC DATA

Much of the world's finest music, especially that of the western world, has been written out of a sincere religious experience, and a deep veneration for God. Outstanding in the field of religious music are three men, two of which precede the other in time by almost a century, but all of which have written music with the same intention . . . to glorify God and Jesus Christ. Bach and Handel did most of their writing in the first half of the 18th century, while Mendelssohn made his rich contribution during the early half of the 19th century. To refer to all the religious music that proceeded from the souls of these men would take volumes. It is sufficient to mention but a few that are appropriate to the anticipated celebration of Easter.

The St. John Passion of Bach is notable for many things, and the contralto aria, "All Is Fulfilled," is of particular beauty. The music portrays the Lion of Judah in His dying moments on the cross. From Handel's immortal Messiah, "He Was Despised and Rejected," a poignant reminder of Christ's reception on earth. From the same work, "He Shall Feed His Flock" comforts the soul with the thought that the Shepherd provides man's every need. St. Paul by Mendelssohn contains the story of Paul's conversion on the Damascus road, magnificently expressed in, "But the Lord Is Mindful of His Own." Paul is moving toward Damascus to bind the Christians, but their safety is assured because "He remembers His children." Elijah, also by Mendelssohn, is another of the majestic religious works conceived by men of profound religious feeling. From it, "O Rest in the Lord" ranks among the truly great pieces of our religious musical heritage. These are but a few among thousands of compositions with a similar purpose. Bach, Handel, and Mendelssohn were favored with a greater genius than some of their lesser fellow composers, but all had the intent to glorify Almighty God when writing this sort of music. It seems quite evident that if divine inspiration is a fact, these men were truly inspired. Music is man's highest expression, when words fail music seems to succeed. It indeed succeeds in presenting us with a portrait of God, and in instilling us with a feeling of reverence and humility. There is no greater aid to worship than the musical creations of inspired men.

All of the selections mentioned above are available by the eminent American contralto Marian Anderson. Her voice knows no equal.

Exchange Material

A study of the Army method of teaching foreign languages made recently at New York University reveals that the amount of time devoted at present to the study of foreign languages in the under-graduate curriculum could and should be increased.

Prof. H. Stanley Schwarz, of the French Department, advocates devoting eight of ten hours a week to foreign languages. This plan would include one hour a day of demonstrations, pronunciation and drills, and one hour devoted solely to conversation.

Prof. Ernst Rose of the German Department, says that the Army program has proved that "American students are just as capable as European students of learning a foreign language and that with the right concentration upon essential aims and with the correct amount of time found necessary by the professor, they can

Confidential Causerie. . .

Just as we were thinking that spring was here, by golly, it snowed. . . . Numerous remains of snow men on the campus bear witness to the fact. . . . But when winter comes can spring be far behind. Or so goes the saying, anyway.

CLIO CELEBRATES

And what a celebration! The low lights, soft music, and punch . . . well, anyway the atmosphere was most conducive to fun and . . . well, we'll settle for fun. The exterior elements were the only fly in the ointment . . . the blizzard did its best to discourage the Clonians but its best was not enough . . . so with boots protruding from gowns and hair tightly bound in scarfs all arrived intact at the Hotel Hershey for an evening of hilarity . . . the soldiers were definitely a group of good sports and all the couples were well matched.

Clare Schaeffer and her escort, Bob Donough, were seen from time to time—but only from time to time. . . . They were the mystery couple of the evening.

"Teeny" had a line with which she seemed to dazzle all the "men"—how about sharing the secret "Teeny."

The shorter of the Bartels had a time keeping up with the Army. . . . May we ask, did she ever agree to the chicken dinner date.

Not only did the soldiers dance with the North Hall lassies, but also took them to dinner the day after—at the Hotel, too. . . . Among the lucky were Gordon and "Squeekie" plus three other fortunate damsels. North Hall has been noted for the personalities of its inmates.

The complicated system of hallways caused Souders and Marjorie Frantz no end of difficulty. . . . At least they blame it on the halls.

And what about Jean Bedgar going from one embarrassment to the next—especially when her escort greeted the Dean with such masculine cordiality.

HITHER, THITHER AND YON

How utterly gruesome were the "ghosts" who waked the sleeping co-eds the other night—with their hollow laughs and horrible appearance, they looked like the real thing. . . . Whose brainstorm was the episode? . . . Must have been a psychological case of something or the other.

It's been very difficult to keep tabs on Mr. Sponseller since he was stricken with the pre-father jitters. . . . All's well that ends well.

The new frosh boys (at least some of them) have referred to the L.V.C. co-eds in rather uncertain adjectives. . . . Come, come now boys, we can't all be perfect!

Has it occurred to any one that Easter Vacation, which will be five days in length, believe it or not, is almost at hand. . . . Only nineteen more working days until that longed-for pause that refreshes. . . . It's never too early to start thinking about the best way to make use of those leisure moments you might possibly have—unless you're in the same boat as yours truly and will spend those moments writing the term papers you should have started before (darn it).

Servicemen Write

Each week LA VIE COLLEGIENNE will print letters from boys in the service. If you have a letter which might interest the student body or other servicemen receiving LA VIE please hand it to Sam Beamesderfer or Frances Workman.

Drendall to Rutledge . . .

Best regards to everyone.

January 28, 1944

As ever,

Harry

Dear Prof.,

Today, with a bundle of forwarded mail, the "Conserve Christmas Greetings" arrived to receive the usual warm welcome. They were a bit earlier this year than last, and here's hoping I'm able to collect them in person next year. Who knows but what I may have a practical use for the next Conserve Formal Programme? What better event could star my first State-side furlough?

Writing time is more scarce than ever, so this will have to do to convey my best wishes to everyone. With colors, guard mount, a few parades, rehearsal, and evening concerts beside private double tonguing practice there isn't much left of 24 hours.

No chance of forgetting my first love, Prof., though playing it is a different story. Have had a bassoon in my hands for ten minutes since LV. Had a deal practically managed but the Gyrene changed his mind and packed it off home. That was on P.I. in September of '42. Trombone keeps me quite busy, thank you, but I'd gladly swap it for a Heckle. Tell Miss Gillespie that I've a confession to make. Though I am a Marine in uniform, name, and occupation, at heart I'm still a civilian.

Just had a V-mail from Dick Phillips—sounds like a fine life in India. Oh well, I had mine in N.Z. so can't complain now. I enjoyed civilian meals and a soft bed last night, so what am I kicking about?

The bug'er says it's chow time, so who am I to argue?

Apologies for this disjointed missive. There have been too many interruptions.

February 24, 1944

Dr. Clyde Lynch
Lebanon Valley College
Annville, Penna.

Dear Doctor Lynch:

It rather looks as though I shall have to postpone my weekend in Annville until sometime in March. Things have been piling up considerably for us in recent weeks necessitating my staying close to Philadelphia.

I know you will be happy to learn that Joseph is appearing with the National Symphony of Washington (Hans Kindler conducting) at their concert in Richmond, Va., this coming Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. The Special Service Office at Camp Lee made the recommendation for this appearance and the Commanding General graciously granted his permission. It would be wonderful if some of our good friends from Annville could find it possible to attend.

While in Washington last Saturday for the rehearsal with the orchestra, Joseph and I had the honor of spending some time with Mrs. Roosevelt in the White House. It was a delight to see the way in which your former Professor in Piano delighted our First Lady with thirty minutes of Chopin, Rachmaninoff, Kreisler and Strauss. Playing for Mrs. Roosevelt was the gratification of a desire

Pvt. Battista Joins Band Unit

(U. S. Army Release)

Camp Lee, Va., Today—Pvt. Joseph R. Battista, of 1103 Serrill Ave., Yeadon, Pa., one of the nation's most outstanding young pianists, has begun specialized Army music training in the Band Training Unit of Camp Lee's Quartermaster Replacement Training Center.

He is one of several hundred specially selected musicians now engaged in the unit's intensive course of eight weeks, which is begun following the completion of six weeks of basic military training. Not only do the musicians learn to perform as members of standard Army bands, but they prepare for service in smaller units or as individuals, ready to take musical cheer to troops in any part of the world.

Prior to his induction in July, 1943, Private Battista held an enviable position in the musical world. Highlights of his career include his debut with the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra in 1939, his graduation in 1940 from the Juilliard Graduate School and his first appearance in New York's Town Hall in the same year. He was the first representative of the Pianistic Youth of U. S. to tour Brazil, South America, under the sponsorship of Brazilian Ambassador Martins and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt. He was elected to the faculties of Philadelphia Conservatory and Lebanon Valley College in 1940 — just four years after his graduation from South Philadelphia Senior High School.

Choric Speaking Society Organized March 6; Frantz President; Hershey Directs

The newly organized Choric Speaking Society held an organization meeting Tuesday, March 6, for the purpose of electing officers.

Eleanor Hershey will serve as director, and Prof. Rutledge is adviser. The officers elected are: President, Marjorie Frantz; Vice President, Madeline Quickel; Secretary, Betty Gooden; and Treasurer, Jeanne Kitchen.

Schindel Named to Y.M.C.A. Cabinet

William H. Schindel has been named to the Y.M.C.A. Cabinet, filling the position of Social Chairman which was vacated by the induction of Robert Zimmerman into the United States Navy, according to an announcement by President Charles Wolfe.

Midshipman Zimmerman is located at Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, where he is a student in the specialized training program. He began this training on March 1.

Valley Lassies Cop Two Games to Begin Season

The Valley Honor Squad opened its 1944 basketball season on February 10 with a 17-14 win over their Elizabethtown College rivals. On Feb. 17 the girls again copped a win, this time at the expense of the Reading St. John's Church club.

The opposition in the Elizabethtown struggle was strong. At the end of the first quarter both clubs boasted a 4-point total. At half time the Valleyettes were out in front with a score of 12-8. Scoring only one point in the third period they were deadlocked at 13-all by their determined rivals. But fate was with the Henderson gals as they entered the fourth quarter to outscore their opponents 4-1 for a final score of 17-14.

Bittner hit high for the Valleyettes with 9 counters but was outpointed by Elizabethtown's Mumma who garnered 11 tallies. Moyer and Shettel copped 4 points apiece for the home club.

The Reading encounter was a high-scoring proposition for both clubs as Henderson's team kept up a steady attack. The visitors were not easily vanquished in the first period and trailed by only one point as they entered the second quarter. However, the Blue and White scoring machine went to work in canto two to come out on top again but with a higher, 28-11, margin. The home club again outscored the visitors in the third period. However, the fourth quarter saw the Reading "Saints" outscore the locals 12-10, but without avail for the latter was already firmly established in the victor's seat.

Lutz of the "Saints" was top lady for the night with 15 counters. Moyer of the Henderson lassies was second with 14 tallies. Tie for third honors were Boydjeff of the "Saints" and Bittner of the locals with 10 points apiece.

Dr. Moore Inspects Music Conservatory For N.A.S.M. March 1

The Lebanon Valley College Conservatory of Music welcomed to the campus Dr. Earl V. Moore, head of the Music Department of the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor, who inspected the Conservatory on Wednesday, March 1.

Dr. Moore is chairman of the curriculum committee of the National Association of Schools of Music. Two years ago he represented the association as examiner. The LVC Conservatory was then admitted as an associate member of the organization.

Each school admitted must undergo a two year probation period. This year was the end of that time for the L. V. C. Conservatory and Dr. Moore was again examiner.

He arrived Tuesday evening as a guest of Dr. and Mrs. Lynch. While here, he visited classes, the library, and conferred with Conservatory faculty members. A small recital was given for him in the afternoon.

Student Campaign Fund Increased

The student fund of the L. V. C. Building and Endowment Campaign has increased by $63.50 since the report printed in the last issue of LA VIE COLLEGIENNE.

This brings the total to $1,216. Approximately 97 per cent of the student body contributed.

Day Students Reorganize Basketball League As Men Join Uncle Sam

A high-speed, hard-fought game opened the new Day-Student Basketball League on March 1, when the Rattlers vanquished the Wildcats to the tune of 36-31.

Fegan's well-balanced Wildcat team maintained a slight lead for the first three quarters of the game. "Big Hank" Detweiler's sharpshooting piled up 23 points to finally break down the Wildcat resistance and enable the Rattlers to score the victory.

Captain Ted Lenker chipped in 7 points on Rattler Side, while the Wildcats presented a triple threat with Gingrich, Gruman, and Fegan racking up 11, 9, and 6 points respectively.

The new streamlined "Axe League" teams to play on Mondays and Wednesdays till April 30 are:

WILDCATS—Captain Fegan, Gingrich, Boyer, Gruman, and Saylor; BEARS—Captain Schnee, Bashore, Kline, Sanders, and Cover; and RATTTLERS—Captain Lenker, Detweiler, Kiefer, Sheetz, Souders, Palmer, and Capelli.

M.A. Parr, Sports Writer, Now With Uncle Sam

Malcolm A. Parr, men's sports writer for LA VIE COLLEGIENNE, has been inducted into the United States Army and is now stationed at Camp Wheeler, Virginia.

Parr, a member of the freshman class prior to his induction, is a graduate of the Hershey Senior High School where he was sports editor of the Hershey High Broadcaster. His post on the staff of LA VIE COLLEGIENNE is being filled by Gerald Gruman. Gruman has been transferred from the news staff.

Valley Bows Twice On Court

Gettysburg and Albright Find Range of Dutchmen

A hard-fighting Lebanon Valley team was forced to bow before Gettysburg by a 53-36 verdict on February 26.

Overwhelming the Dutchmen in the first half of the game, the G-burg team, in a terrific scoring spree, racked up a 36-15 lead. However, the Intrieri-men recovered from their earlier setback to hold down their opponents to 10 points in the third quarter while scoring 9 of their own. The final quarter saw the scrappy L. V. courtmen actually outscore the Gettysburg team 12 to 7, thereby evening up the score a bit.

Frankie Shupper again proved his playing ability by piling up 19 points for Valley. Parnell, Martin, and Roberts posted double figures in the scoring column with 26, 12, and 11 respectively.

The Albright game turned out to be a thrilling encounter on February 23, when the Dutchmen were overcome 47-39. Keeping close on the heels of the Albright team, the Intrieri-men were only 1 point behind at the end of the third quarter. But Dame Fortune seemed to favor the Albright courtmen who broke through in the last quarter to gain the victory.

The exciting game featured Shupper as scoring leader for the L. V. team with 15 points. Durko and Landis were key men for the conquerors with 19 and 15 points respectively.

Auction-goers at Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Penna., were puzzled when the Sigma Phi Epsilon chapter, forced to close because of loss of more than two-thirds of its members to the service, put up for sale an unusual tombstone, along with kitchenware, furniture, and athletic equipment.

Members of the fraternity explained that when the chapter's pet dog was killed recently a sympathetic alumnus donated a handsome memorial. But the sale came along before the memorial could be erected, and Fido's tombstone went for $1.25.—A. C. P.

Dr. Evans Speaks To Student Body On Zionism

Dr. Richard E. Evans, widely-traveled Presbyterian minister of the Christian-Jewish Association, who left the pulpit to devote his time to help promote the American way of life, addressed the students of Lebanon Valley College Monday, February 21. Dr. Evans spoke through the courtesy of those sponsoring his evening address at the Willow Street USO Club of Lebanon, Pennsylvania.

In reference to the sacrifices that have to be made before the war is over, Dr. Evans stated: "You and I and all mankind have a Jordan to cross. . . Yet there are barriers. These are the forces of bigotry, indifference, selfishness, and complacency." After showing how these "will do their best to keep the dream away" Dr. Evans pointed out further that though this war is supposed to be based on honor, we are not living up to our ideals.

After the lecture, Dr. Lynch, President of the College, invited the audience to ask questions. In answer to one concerning the fate of the Chamberlain White Paper, which disregards the provisions of the Balfour Declaration, Dr. Evans stated that after the war, "there will not be a complete abrogation of the Chamberlain White Paper, but rather a series of face-saving postponements."

He further upheld the Zionist cause by showing that the Jews had backed Montgomery at El Alamein, by giving instances of the Jews and Arabs living together peacefully, and by saying that the Jews had acquired Arab land only after having paid high prices for it.

L. W. R. Hear Address By Dr. Bruce Behney At Annual Banquet

The Life Work Recruits of L. V. C. were addressed by Dr. J. Bruce Behney, Professor of Systematic Theology at Bonebrake Seminary, at their annual banquet, held the evening of February 22, at 6 P. M. in North Hall dining room.

Dr. Clyde A. Lynch introduced Dr. Behney, who challenged young ministers to be faithful to their calling in time of crisis. Lloyd Housel, President of the Recruits, acted as toastmaster.

Guests present at the banquet in addition to Dr. Richie and Dr. Lynch, were: Dr. A. H. M. Stonecipher, Dr. W. A. Wilt, and Rev. E. H. Sponseller. Special guests invited were the cabinet members of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A.

After the banquet Arthur Stombauch, student and member of the Life Work Recruits, played a cornet solo accompanied by Barbara Kolb.

Dr. Behney, a graduate of Lebanon Valley College in 1928, also addressed the student body of the college during the regular chapel hour.

Edw. Hill Lectures With Illustrations To Student Body

On Wednesday, March 1, an interesting illustrated lecture was delivered in Engle Hall by Edward A. Hill. His talk, "Birds and Men," was accompanied by a series of excellent color slides and motion pictures which he himself photographed.

Mr. Hill is a member of the Pennsylvania Academy of Science, Magee Natural History Society, Reading, Pa., and several other societies. As a lecturer, he has been active since the advent of color photography; while as an author, he has written many stories and poems, among which are The Snow Gene Comes to Parramore and Winged Iridescence. As a photographer, his success is acknowledged by the appearance of his photographs in various salons and magazines.

Mr. Hill is the only local lecturer in the twenty-nine years' history of the Reading Public Museum lecture course of the Reading School District.

Clonian Social Held At Hotel Hershey, Saturday, March 4

The Clonian Literary Society held its annual anniversary formal at the Blue Room of the Hotel Hershey on Saturday, March 4. Music for the evening was provided by Howard Gale and his orchestra.

Soldiers from the Indiantown Gap Military Reservation, sailors home on leave, and students all helped to make the evening a memorable one.

Chaperones for the occasion were: Dr. and Mrs. Lynch, Dr. and Mrs. Derickson, Professor and Mrs. Carmean, Miss Gillespie and Miss Myers.

Betty Ann Hess, Anniversary President, was assisted in her activities by the following committees: Place—Betty Bartels and Janice Stahl; Orchestra—Laura Royce and Betty June Bomgardner.

Programs—Eleanor Frezeman and Maeredit Houser; Publicity—Sarah Koury, Jeanne Bedger, Nancy Johns, and Sarah Schott; Chaperones—Elizabeth Reiff; Alumni—Sarah Stauffer and Nancy Sattazahn; Transportation—Jeanne Waller.

Theatres of the Nation Sponsor Red Cross Week

(Special to LA VIE)

Philadelphia—Red Cross Week will be observed in all the theatres of the nation from March 23 through March 29, according to an announcement made today by Joseph Barnhard, national chairman of the War Activities Committee Red Cross Campaign.

Theatres in this district, under the direction of Earle W. Sweigert, chairman of the theatres committee for Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware, are expected to cooperate 100 per cent in the drive for donations from movie patrons.

Working in conjunction with local members of the Red Cross, aided by volunteers, the theatres plan to have collections taken up at every performance during the week.

"All of us realize," Sweigert said, "the wonderful work being done for our servicemen and women by this grand organization. But many of us fail to realize that each and every one of us, especially in these trying days of war, is part of it. Unless we support it, it cannot function. And that would be a calamity. During the last year, aside from rendering personal service to servicemen and their families, this organization collected more than 5,000,000 pints of blood for plasma, recruited 50,000 nurses for the Army and Navy, plus 65,000 nurses' aides, supplied 925,000,000 pieces of surgical dressing, delivered 5,300,000 packages to prisoners of war, operated 350 overseas clubs for servicemen and women and distributed $77,000,000 in foreign war relief, in addition to meeting many other emergencies."

Lebanon Co. Campaign, Led by Harold Risser, Operating Full Swing

The Lebanon Valley College Building and Endowment Campaign in Lebanon County is now in full swing. This county-wide campaign is being led by County Commissioner Harold W. Risser. His aide is Lloyd A. Sattazahn, who is also associate chairman of the nationwide L.V.C. campaign.

District chairmen for the Lebanon County Campaign are: J. Gordon Starr, Annville; Joseph C. Early, Cleona; Lloyd A. Sattazahn, Lebanon; John E. Witter, Newmanstown; Edgar M. Landis, Myerstown; A. Lloyd Horst, Schaefferstown; Ray H. Light, Cornwall; Abner C. Spangler, Campbelltown; Robert E. Hartz, Palmyra; Harry D. Spitler, Jonestown; and Rev. Philip Strickler, Jonestown.

The Lebanon County Campaign Executive Committee is composed of: Harold W. Risser, Lloyd A. Sattazahn, Joseph C. Early, Dr. P. B. Gible, Robert E. Hartz, A. Lloyd Horst, John Hunsicker, Edgar M. Landis, Ray H. Light, Dr. H. E. Miller, Abner C. Spangler, Harry D. Spitler, J. Gordon Starr, Paul L. Strickler, Rev. Philip Strickler, Dr. William A. Wilt and John E. Witter.

Fornoff is May Queen; Hess is Maid of Honor

Court Is Also Named in Chapel Poll on April 14

Hazel Fornoff will be the Queen of the May at Lebanon Valley College for 1944, according to the results of a student poll conducted during the regular Friday morning Chapel in Engle Hall on April 14.

Standing in close second in the election and consequently Maid of Honor is Elizabeth Ann Hess. Both the Queen and her Maid are Seniors in the Conservatory of Music. The former is an outstanding student in the piano and organ department. The latter excels in the field of vocal music.

The Queen's court will be completed by the following girls who were also elected by the student body: Gene Bowman, Marian Kreider, Anne Adams, Emma Catherine Miller, Blossom Levitz, and Sara McGeehin.

Y's Conduct World Friendship Drive

At the present time, the Y.W.C.A. and Y.M.C.A. are conducting the annual Student World Friendship drive. Sara Stauffer represents the Y. W. C. A. and James Flinchbaugh represents the Y. M. C. A. in charge of the project.

The Project began in 1927 when the students of the United Brethren colleges and seminary contributed a fund for the support of Albert Academy, a secondary school for boys at Freetown, West Africa. Three years later the students decided to change the place and raise a fund large enough to support a student representative, selected from the student body of one of the colleges or seminary, to go to Africa to teach for a term of two years. The amount needed for one representative is $1,000 divided as follows: salary $750; transportation $250.

Each student on campus is asked to donate at least one dollar if possible. The support of L. V. is needed in this vital effort.

Coeds Entertain Mothers This Weekend Beginning Tomorrow Night, April 21

The coeds of Lebanon Valley College will entertain their mothers on the campus this weekend, beginning tomorrow night, April 21. The Y. W. C. A., led by President Marian Kreider, is in charge of the annual affair.

On Friday, the mothers will be the guests at the Messiah in Engle Hall. On Saturday there will be a full program for both mothers and daughters, including a softball game and the annual Mother and Daughter Banquet.

Sunday will be a free day for the visitors until three P. M. when Dr. and Mrs. Lynch will entertain at tea.

LA VIE regrets the lack of space to print the names of the committee members.

Recitalist

HAZEL FORNOFF

Senior, will present an evening of piano music in Engle Hall, Tuesday, April 25, at 8:00 P. M.

The program is as follows: Partita in A Minor, Bach; Sonata, Opus 2, No. 2, Beethoven; Rhapsody in B Minor, Brahms; Fountains of the Acqua Paola, Griffes; and Scherzo in E Major, Chopin.

Staff Sgt. Donmoyer, Former Student, Wins D. F. C.

An Eighth Army Air Force Bomber Station, England, April 14 — Staff Sergt. William M. Donmoyer, 22, Flying Fortress waist gunner, has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for "extraordinary achievement" in combat with the enemy over Nazi Europe. The sergeant gunner already holds the Air Medal with three oak leaf clusters (awarded in lieu of additional medals).

His wife lives at 1019 Lehman street, Lebanon, Pa., and his parents, live at 44 West Main Street, Annaville, Pa.

Donmoyer, veteran of more than a score of daylight bomber attacks on Germany and occupied countries, made his latest sortie to bomb Berlin on March 6. The sergeant thinks the Berlin operation was his most exciting mission to date.

"I had seen German fighters before, one kind now and another variety on another mission," he says. "Over Berlin, however, the Luftwaffe sent up a real assortment. I saw several different types of Focke-Wulfs, Messerschmitts, and Junkers."

Prior to joining the AAF, the sergeant worked for Harry L. Meyer, of Cleona, Pa. He attended Lebanon Valley College for two years after graduating from Annaville High School in 1939. He studied radio at the AAF school at Sioux Falls, S. D., and aerial gunnery at Las Vegas, Nevada.

Five Seniors Elected To Phi Alpha Epsilon

Five Seniors were elected to membership in Phi Alpha Epsilon, honorary scholarship society, according to Dean Stonecipher.

They are Samuel Beamesderfer, Ruth Haverstock, Marian Kreider, Elizabeth Kreiser, and Betty Minnich. The quintet was entertained at the New England Pantry last evening.

Schindel Will Lead College Promenade

April 29 Is Date for Dance in Hotel Hershey

William Schindel will lead the All-College Prom on Saturday, April 29, from 9 P. M. to 12 P. M. in the Ball Room of the Hotel Hershey with music furnished by Red McCarthy and his orchestra. Schindel was selected by chapel poll on Friday, April 14.

Tickets for the Prom are on sale now at $1.25 each, plus .25 tax.

The General Committee is composed of William Schindel, Geraldine Huss, Gerald Kauffman, Joseph Kania, and Betty Jean Butt.

Bernice Corbalis is chairman of the committee arranging for the orchestra, with Sam Beamesderfer, Eleanor Frezeman, Ted Smith, and Ruth Karre assisting her.

The Program Committee is composed of Bruce Souders, chairman, and Jeanne Waller, Joanne Bittner, Nancy Johns, Marian Kreider, Patricia Bartels, Clare Schaeffer, and Marion Himmelberger.

Charles Shelley heads the Chaperones Committee, assisted by Eleanor Hershey, Evelyn Heister, and Sara Schott.

Bruce Souders, chairman, Patricia Bartels, Jeanne Waller, and Betty Jean Butt attended to the nominations for and election of the Prom leader.

The Entertainment Committee is headed by William Schindel, with Betty Ann Hess, Phyllis Snyder, and Gladys Flinchbaugh as assistants.

Marjorie Frantz is the chairman of the Place Committee. Elizabeth Jean Light, Nancy Sattazahn, and Barbara Kolb are also on the committee.

Transportation problems are to be referred to the Committee headed by James Flinchbaugh, with Janice Stahl, Frank Shupper, Elinor Strauss, and Sara Koury assisting him.

The Ticket Committee is under the chairmanship of Blossom Levitz. Other members of the Committee are: Helen Dickel, Betty Gooden, Esther Zimmerman, Erwin Smarr, Robert Christ, and Helen Hartz.

Off-campus dates will be accommodated in the respective dormitories. Joseph Kania will attend to the accommodations for the men guests, and Eleanor Frezeman for the women.

College Red Cross Chapter Raises $26 For War Fund

According to an announcement by Lizette Fisher, chairman of the Red Cross Chapter on Lebanon Valley Campus, the latest campaign for funds resulted in the sum of twenty-six dollars which was added to the quota for Lebanon County.

Miss Fisher was in charge of the collection on campus and was assisted by a committee as follows: South Hall, Judy Ulmer; West Hall, Jean Anger; North Hall, Laura Royce; Men's Dorm, James Flinchbaugh and Day Students, Bruce Souders and Rosalie Reinhold.

Lt. Hollis Kieter '36 Destroys Five Planes With One Bomb

(The following story was written by Marine Private First Class Frederick A. Orehek, of 1264 East 59th St., Cleveland, O.)

Marine Corps Air Depot, Miramar, Calif., April 5—Five Japanese war planes parked wing to wing on an enemy airdrome on Ballale Island, were destroyed with one direct bomb hit by Marine First Lieutenant Hollis H. Kieter, Jr., 27, of Dayton, Virginia, a torpedo bomber pilot, recently returned from the Southwest Pacific.

Lieutenant Kieter brought his total to six last February when he set afire another Zero as it was getting ready for a take-off from a Rabaul fighter strip.

The Air Medal holder participated in 37 strikes on enemy shipping, airdromes and ground emplacements. His squadron of Gruman Avengers played a vital role in spearheading the Allied drives in the Solomon Islands area. Operating from Guadalcanal, Munda, and Bougainville, the hard-hitting torpedo bombers sought out and neutralized Japanese fortifications prior to invasion by landing forces.

Because of the hazardous conditions involved, night mine-sowing missions brought on many escapades with death, the lieutenant disclosed.

"To isolate the Japs from their supply ships, we plugged their harbors with mines," said Lieutenant Kieter. "Since we had to fly very low and level to lay them well, it was easy for their searchlights and ack-ack batter-

Twenty-eight Seniors Get Degrees in May; Secretary Wickard to Address Grads

Dean A. H. M. Stonecipher will confer degrees on twenty-eight Seniors at the Seventy-Fifth Annual College Commencement to be held in the Annaville U. B. Church, Monday, May 22, at 10:00 A. M.

The speaker for the occasion will be Claude R. Wickard, United States Secretary of Agriculture, a national figure whose ability and effectiveness in his post should make him a realistic adviser for the graduating class.

At the Baccalaureate services on Sunday, May 21, the speaker will be Rev. P. B. Gible, D.D., pastor of the Palmyra First Church of the United Brethren in Christ.

Conservatory Music Festival Opens Tonight

Prof. Edward P. Rutledge Directs 12th Annual Affair

The Music Festival of the Conservatory of Music, under the baton of Professor Edward P. Rutledge, will be held tonight and tomorrow night, April 20 and 21, in Engle Hall. This will be the twelfth annual affair, and, despite the war, is expected to draw a large audience.

The two-day musical event opens with a combined concert given by the Glee Club and Concert Band Thursday evening. The program for the Glee Club is as follows: Part I—

CONDUCTOR

Invocation to Saint Cecilia by Victor Harris, My Johnny Was a Shoemaker arranged by Deems Taylor, Summertime by George Gershwin, When Daddy Sings by Victor Harris, Onward March, Grenadier arranged by Gerald Reynolds, The Son of the Wooden Soldier by Frederick Loewe. Part II—Omnipotence by Franz Schubert, Whistle and I'll Come to You arranged by Roy Lathrop, Open Thy Heart by George Bizet, The Star by James Rogers, Peter Piper by Frank Bridge, and The Sleigh by Richard Kountz.

The Concert Band program is as follows: March, The Blue Banner by B. F. Schultz; Andante, Pathetique Symphony by P. I. Tchaikowsky; La Rouquette by David Bennett featuring Miriam Carper, pianist; American Patrol by F. W. Meacham; The Merry Widow by Franz Lehar; Napoli by Herman Bellstedt featuring Arthur Stambach, cornetist; Puppet Parade by F. L. Buchtel; Contra-Dance by L. van Beethoven; Waltz Song (from Romeo et Juliette) by Charles Gounod featuring Ruth Karre, soprano; and Glory of the Trumpets by J. O. Brockenshire.

The presentation of the Messiah by George Frederick Handel, on Friday night, will climax the two-day Festival. It will be sung by a chorus of seventy-five. Because of the scarcity of male students, the tenor and bass sections will be composed largely of prominent singers from the surrounding communities. The chorus will be accompanied by the Lebanon Valley College Symphony Orchestra and Prof. R. Porter Campbell at the organ.

Soloists for the Messiah will be as follows: Jean Marberger Medinger, of Palmyra, soprano; Helen Hartman Dale, of Harrisburg, contralto; Howard Phillipy, of Palmyra, tenor; and Robert E. Dilworth, of Scranton, bass.

• Farewell

Every year it's the same thing all over again: the old staff says, "Goodbye," and the new staff rolls up it's sleeves and gets to work. It becomes monotonous to see and hear these repetitions. No one sheds any tears about it any more. People say they're sorry to be leaving and others say they're sorry to see them go—that's all there is to it. In consequence, we, the old staff, are on the spot—up a tree—if you like that phraseology better. We want to say goodbye in a way that you may know we mean it. We want to welcome the new staff, whoever they be, in a way that they may know that we are not merely "passing the buck" but that we are rooting for their success during the 1944-45 publication year.

To them we say: "Good luck." To the Faculty Committee—Struble, Wallace, Rutledge, and Stokes: "Thank you." To all of you, our readers, "Goodbye." Time is a tyrant. This is our "30."

On page one of LA VIE COLLEGIENNE you will find the report of the recent Red Cross War Fund Drive sponsored on our Campus by our new Red Cross Unit. Twenty-six dollars, the total receipts from this drive, seems to be a very small amount for such a worthy cause. To the contrary, we feel that it is a great complement to the students of Lebanon Valley College to have raised this much.

Our reasons for this view are these: First, the Lebanon Valley College Red Cross Chapter is still in its infancy. This was its first financial drive. Second, the drive was conducted sans newspaper publicity and sans person-to-person solicitation. Third, the drive came at a time when most of the money-earning students were catching up with their income tax payments.

Believe us, we are not alibying for future poor showings. If and when our Campus Chapter of the American Red Cross stages another drive for funds, let's back it till it hurts. It did hurt some people to give this time, but we heard no complaints from anyone. Furthermore, the little hurt we may suffer by giving to the best of our ability goes a long way in relieving another's discomforts.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor
LA VIE COLLEGIENNE
Dear Editor:

Have you ever paused in your hustle and bustle from one building to another on the Campus of L.V.C. long enough to look up into the sky for a minute? Perhaps you did, and did you notice that there has NOT been an American flag, nor any other symbol of our patriotic spirit, flying on top the flag pole of our Administration building for the last two months? Well, why aren't we at least consistent?

Exchange Material

In order to answer the question, "What is the present-day collegian's version of an ideal professor?" the student newspaper at Westminster College conducted a survey among college men and women.

Coeds prefer a man who understands "why I can't comprehend the intricate workings of a motor." He need not be young and good-looking. Boys prefer middle-aged women.

Other requirements for the ideal prof are punctuality and accuracy, an enthusiastic interest in his subject, and use of humorous incidents to brighten up dry text-book material.

To add a bit of humanism, students appreciate the touch of "absent-mindedness" so traditionally associated with college professors. For example, forgetting that quiz he intended to spring as a surprise, or failing to call for that list of physics problems.—A.C.P.

THE CHURCH COLEGE

I like colleges that nestle
In quiet little towns,
And seem to offer something more
Than credits, caps and gowns.

I like classes filled with friends
Who have a smile for me,
I don't like profs who know me as
Row 31, Seat 3.

I hate to meet a former prof's
Unrecognizing stare;

I like the kind who knows your name,
Your hopes, your love affair.

I like Church-College profs who teach like wise, inspired crusaders;

Who take the time to read your themes
And don't hire student graders.

I like colleges which strive to learn
Years later where you are;
Yes, even though you've never been
A campus queen or star.

A mammoth institution holds
Within its office space,
Along with proof of my degree,
A photo of my face.

The most it knows about me is
My city, birth, and class.

I like my old Church-College best;
It doesn't think en masse.

She'll gaily cheer each grad's career

With faith that's optimistic;
To her a former student is
No musty old statistic.

The friends I made at old T. C.
Passed not like ships at night;
They send me lengthy letters still,
Though I forget to write.

I like colleges that nestle
In quiet little towns

It was a little more than two years ago that we had a flag-raising ceremony in our College Chapel, and part of it on the open campus, in sight of a raising flag as we sang the Star-Spangled Banner. It was then that the College pledged its support to the war effort, and has continued to carry out that pledge. But why should we have a flag raising ceremony one time and then a little later forget that we have a flag, which is the symbol of that which we love "the land of the free and the home of the brave."

The ones who have authority to place said flag on our Campus would be very kind if they would see that our flag is openly displayed again so that we might not be ashamed to show others our college, and avoid the embarrassment of having a prospective student asking the question, "Doesn't Lebanon Valley College have a flag on any of its buildings?" This might happen again to any one of us.

Signed,
"Perturbed"

DISC DATA

George Frederick Handel, the greatest composer England ever had, was born in 1685 at Halle, Germany. His great gifts for music were not cultivated in his early education; for his intellectual pursuits were directed toward becoming a lawyer. After his father's death, which ended the family opposition to his musical career, Handel became second violinist in the orchestra at the opera house in Hamburg. He subsequently traveled to Italy where his music gained him much favor among influential people. This success led to his return to Germany to become court composer at Hanover. Later he journeyed to England where his triumphs superceded those made in Italy. It was in England that he took up his permanent home, and became a naturalized British subject.

On one of his tours to England he overstayed his leave from the Elector of Hanover. The Elector, in the meantime, was made George the First of England. To regain favor with the sovereign Handel composed his famous and delightful Water Music which he had played by a fifty piece orchestra as the king floated down the Thames on a barge. The magic of music did the trick, and Handel was reinstated as a favorite of George.

The Water Music itself consists of twenty jolly themes and dance tunes, bourrees, hornpipes and so on joined loosely in a sort of serenade. The entire work is played infrequently—the usual custom being to play five or six parts arranged as a suite. The joviality of the music is captivating and delightful. It is not heavy or serious, but light and sparkling with many sprightly tunes that one never tires of hearing. It is one of the sources of supreme musical enjoyment.

Students attending a Christian liberal arts college are particularly fortunate in their opportunities. We have, more than any other student, the advantage of combining in our lives what Matthew Arnold has called Hellenism and Christianity. That is, we have the chance to merge in our personalities, religion and education—two of the most vital and important bases of a democratic state. The education of course, comes from a serious effort to acquire knowledge and wisdom during tenure at college.

The religion is found at the source of our Christian heritage—at the foot of the cross of Christ who was God incarnate. It is He who can inspire and direct the lives of men toward a deeper appreciation of the values of a spiritually centered life. From Him are obtained the precepts to guide daily living in its constant association with our fellow men, who are our equals in the sight of Almighty God. The college campus that centers its religious activities in the person of Christ, will find itself filled with new life, and a surging spiritual experience.

Contemplation of Christ's life, His teachings, and His voluntary sacrifice, will bring us to a realization of our wretched natures, and at the same time plant in us the knowledge that there is much of worth to accomplish on earth, and that it is we who must strive toward the Kingdom of God. May we, like Paul, be inspired to reconcile Christianity and culture as he intended them to be united when he wrote: "For I am crucified with Christ, nevertheless I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me . . ."

Galatians 2:20.

—Sam Beamesderfer.

Confidential Causerie. . .

Here it is spring, and we thought it would never arrive. To tell the truth, we still aren't quite sure, but signs of the times seem to bear witness to the fact. The yellow border of daffodils at the Conserv', the buds which can be seen (with the aid of a microscope) on the trees, and the most important new rings are the most obvious signs. Garneta arrived back from Easter vacation displaying a most scrumptious diamond, while Jean Kitchen, it is rumored, will boast of one soon.

TRIPPING

That's exactly what Janice Stahl did with her few days of rest . . . and to Wisconsin, where the chocolate sodas come with INCH deep whipped cream on top—can you steam your imagination up to that? By the way has Janice remembered yet what she did Friday night of her visit there? Some people's memories . . .

Sanders felt "drawn" to Delaware and Della, so off he went and . . . well, let's drop the story there!

Also "Bud" Hershey did a little traveling—naturally to spend the vacation with Gerry.

HAVE YOU HEARD? (If you have, listen again.)

A bicycle which resides near Hershey was painted by its owner, Miss Gilda Tulli, during the vacation past, and was duly named Lady Macbeth. The christening has not yet taken place. Question—would or wouldn't Lady Macbeth turn over in her grave if we were to inform her of said fact? Also, is or isn't that a decent name to give to a self-respecting bike?

Harriet Miller's daze has finally worn off . . . Sam has returned to the duties that UNCLE SAM requires of him . . . and Harriet is thinking seriously of finishing that term paper.

Erma Loy certainly finds something funny in those letters that she receives so constantly. Else why the giggles?

What about the newest pictorial addition to Workman's collection? We hear that it was a birthday present.

What was it about Fifi Fisher's week-end guest that got Don? Then, too, there's the "dummy" story of Marian M. The "jiggerboard suite" was certainly done up right! The only thing missing was a sign, "any resemblance to any member of this dorm is purely coincidental."

SO WE WENT BOWLING—AND HOW!

With shouts of fiendish joy the bowling balls were sent flying up the alleys—and what sends! Some of our closest friends were almost no longer close, for with the ball went the bowler—(mainly S. S. S.). Gushie proved quite a star with a score of 175—and friend Smarr remedied his score when he found that he was using the wrong fingers . . . tut, tut, Mr. Smarr.

Sally Stauffer held one of the records—slow motion, but a strike every time. And may we say that the W. A. A. made a direct strike at fine entertainment—but definitely.

We take this opportunity to welcome the Mothers to the campus and hope they will have a grand time finding out how their daughters dear spend the best part of their time!

Women's Sports News

A volley ball tournament is going on between the women day students and the dorm students. The soph day students have won 3 games while the dorm lassies have not managed to catch them unaware and thus have no wins to their credit. In one section of the freshman physical ed. class, the day students have won the class match with 4 games to the dorm frosh's 0. The other group has not completed their games, but the day girls lead with 2 games to the dorm's 1. The tournament will be completed this week.

Miss Henderson has posted names for the badminton tournament which will end on April 29. All girls participating in the games will receive points for W.A.A. Winners will play winners and losers will play losers. Come out and join in the fun, girls, and chalk up the points for your W.A.A. record of this year.

Names were also posted for a table tennis tournament which will end on April 29. The schedule is similar to the badminton order of games and must be completed definitely on that date. All women students taking part will also receive points for playing till eliminated. If you have a case of war nerves and want to relax, be sure to meet your partner and get those games played off in your spare time. May the best gals win.

CAMPUS CLUBS

GREEN BLOTTER

At the last meeting of the Green Blotter Club held on the night of April 13, Marjorie Frantz was elected Head Scop, and Frances Workman Keeper of the Word Horde. The club will graduate three of its members this year—Marian Kreider, Sam Beamesderfer, and Bruce Souders, former Head Scop.

BIOLOGY CLUB

The meeting of the Biology Club will be held on Monday, April 24, at 7:30 in the Biology Lecture Room. Elizabeth Sheetz and Nancy Schreiber will discuss their genetic experiment on mice. Sara Schott will give the news.

W. A. A.

W. A. A. is making plans for initiation of new members to be held on Wednesday, May 3. The initiation will be followed by a banquet to be held in the Dining Hall on Thursday, May 4. Jean Waller is chairman of the initiation committee.

Chairman of the banquet committees are: Food, Gerry Huss; Favors, Edith Kreiser and Christine Mumma; Program, Clare Schaffer and Marion Himmelberger; Decorations, Catherine Yeager.

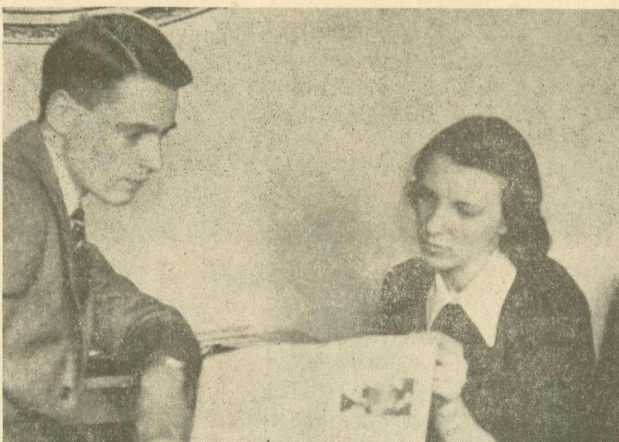

Weiser Cops Top Honors In Men's Handball Singles

Herman Weiser stole the crown in the Men's Singles Handball Tournament held recently on the College handball court.

In the finals with runner-up Ted Lenker, Weiser won two games: 21-17 and 22-20. In the next game Lenker snapped back to win by a 21-13 margin. The last game of the match was forfeited by Lenker, consequently giving Weiser the tournament. Lenker's forfeit came only after he was stricken with cramped muscles.

The contestants in the tournament were Weiser, Schnee, Smarr, Farmer, Lenker, Sanders, Cover, Souders, Fegan, and Gingrich.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

EX-BUSINESS MANAGER AND EX-EDITOR

Mr. and Mrs. Moses Keller of Hummelstown announced the engagement of their daughter, E. Louise, to Ensign Frederick S. Frantz, Jr., on March 24 at a small party in their home.

The newly engaged couple were both members of the class of 1943 and were Editor and Business Manager respectively of LA VIE COLLEGIENNE. They were also active in the Day Student Government Bodies, the Wig and Buckle Club, I. R. C., and other campus organizations.

At the present time Miss Keller is teaching in the Highspire High School and Ensign Frantz is stationed at the University of Chicago. No immediate plans for the wedding have been made.

Axe League
Nearing CloseFinal Battles Are Crucial
Ones For Rattlers & Bears

Two hard fighting day student teams are battling for supremacy in the noon hour Axe League basketball games, as this year's schedule nears the end. The Rattlers have won 6 and lost 2. The Bears have won 6 and lost 3.

On Wednesday, April 12, the Rattlers edged out the Wilcats by a score of 33-29. Detweiler and Souders high scored for the winners in an exciting game by scoring 20 and 8 pts. respectively. Gingrich with 14 pts. and Gruman with 8 topped the Wildcat scoring list.

Meeting the Rattler challenge head-on, the Bears streaked to an overwhelming 50-42 victory over the Wildcats. Schnee and Bashore bewildered their opposition by dropping in 20 and 19 pts. each. Kline followed up with 8 more. The Wildcat offense featured Gingrich with 16 pts. and Fegan with 8.

Including last Wednesday's game, the three games which are yet to be played will decide whether the Bears or the Rattlers will be victorious.

Individual scoring features another close battle with Bashore and Detweiler fighting it out for top honors. The first ten in individual scoring are as follows:

Bashore, 162 pts.; Detweiler, 144 pts.; Gingrich, 103 pts.; Kline, 83 pts.; Schnee, 74 pts.; Lenker, 61 pts.; Gruman, 51 pts.; Fegan, 43 pts.; Boyer, 39 pts.; and Souders, 27 pts.

Board of Trustees Grants J. W. Espenshade Leave For Two Months

Mr. J. W. Espenshade, treasurer of Lebanon Valley College, has been granted a leave of absence for two months. Replacing him is Professor M. L. Stokes, who has been appointed Acting Secretary of the Finance Committee.

Another addition to the staff of the College Office is Miss Elsie Stahler of Lebanon. Miss Stahler assumed her position on March 27. She is a graduate of Lebanon High School, Class of '42, and has been transferred to the College from Middletown.

Professor Stokes has announced the following treasury office hours: Monday, 10:15-12:00, 2:30-5:00; Tuesday, 10:15-11:15; Wednesday, 8:00-9:00, 2:30-5:00; Thursday, 10:00-12:00, 1:00-5:00; Friday, 11:15-12:00, 2:30-5:00; Saturday, 8:00-12:00.

PERSONALS

Pvt. Louis Mandes of the 2nd Air Corps is spending a fifteen-day furlough at home with his parents in Hershey. Pvt. Mandes was a member of the class of '44.

Pvt. Frederic K. Miller, former professor of L. V. C., is spending a nine-day furlough at his home in Annville. He will return to Camp Van Dorn, Mississippi, where he has been stationed for some time.

Gerald Kauffman and Dale Beittel filled the pulpit of the Annville Evangelical Church on Sunday, April 16, during the absence of the minister.

Miss Catherine Critchley was the weekend guest of Lizette Fisher.

Francis Heckman, former student, visited the campus over the weekend.

Mrs. Paul Ulrich, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Andrew Bender, and a graduate of L.V.C., left April 16, with her young son, for Florida to be with her husband, a lieutenant in the Army Air Corps. Lt. Ulrich is also a L.V.C. graduate. Mrs. Ulrich and son made the trip by plane.

On April 3, Miss Helen E. Myers gave a talk before the Women's Auxiliary of the Good Samaritan Hospital of Lebanon on the Hiram Herr Shenk Collection of the College Library.

John B. Mengel, who attended this school last year, previous to his induction into the Army, has entered the Army Air Forces Training Command School at Yale University. John, who served at L.V.C.'s '44 Quittie Staff photographer, is training in the field of photography.

Miriam Tippery has accepted a teaching position for next year at Martinsburg High School.

Ides of March Favor Richie; Grandson Admits Bible Prof. to Grandfathers' Club

When Darwin D. Clupper, Jr., was born on the Ides of March, he made his Grandfather, Dr. Richie, eligible for membership in the Grandfathers' Club.

The child's mother, the former Alice Richie, graduated from Lebanon Valley College in '39. The father, D. D. Clupper, is an Otterbein graduate, now a Chaplain at Pensacola Naval Air School.

Miss Gillespie Attends N.A.M. Convention in Ohio

Miss Gillespie, director of the conservatory, represented Lebanon Valley College at the twentieth annual meeting of the National Association of Music held recently at the Hotel Netherland Plaza, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Lebanon Valley College has been a member of the Association since 1941. Miss Gillespie is a member of the Committee on the Curriculum of Music Education Schools in the Music Educators National Convention, and is President of the Music Section of the Pennsylvania Association.

Only 145 of the foremost colleges are invited to join the association, thus Lebanon Valley can be proud of its position in musical circles.

Last Issue of LA VIE for 1943-44 Editorial Staff

This is the last issue of LA VIE COLLEGIENNE under the present staff. The May 5 issue will be published by a completely new editorial staff.

Just who will edit LA VIE next year cannot be definitely announced this week. A Faculty O. K. is required before the present plans for next year become valid.

$99,273 Needed By May 9 to Assure Campaign Victory

(From the April 11 edition of Lebanon Valley College Campaign News.)

"At press time reports from the office of Campaign Director George W. Williams indicate a slow, steady realization of the goal of our Campaign, $550,000. To date $450,727 of this total.

"A breakdown of this total reveals that of a goal of $50,000 each, the Alumni and the Lebanon County phases of the Campaign have contributed $34,864 and $28,286 respectively. The Church Campaign is forging ahead meanwhile with increased vigor as the reports on pages 2, 3, and 4 indicate.

"Concentrating on the Campus itself, we find that the students have pledged to date a total of $1,224. But they were not the only active group on the campus. The Faculty and Administrative Staff have raised a sum of $5,885, while the Board of Trustees have realized a total of $21,325."

Frantz Named New Y. W. Head

Other Officers Elected In Chapel Poll

At the annual Y. W. C. A. elections held Friday, April 28, in Chapel, Marjorie L. Frantz was chosen president for the 44-45 term, with Eleanor Hershey assisting her as vice-president.

Other officers elected were: recording secretary, Sarah Stauffer; corresponding secretary, Jean Bedger; treasurer, Miriam Jones; day student representatives, Martha Ross and Betty June Gingrich.

President Frantz announced that a cabinet would be chosen at a later date, possibly at the Y retreat for the new and old cabinets to be held Saturday, May 6, at Mount Gretna.

There were no elections held this year for any Y. M. C. A. offices, because of the uncertainty of male students on campus. However, it is to be assumed that the Y. W. will proceed to take charge of all activities formerly governed by the two bodies jointly, at least until further plans are approved by the administration.

Ballet Concludes Series of Concerts

The final concert of the Community Concert Series was held Apr. 27 when Mia Slavenska and her dance ensemble were presented.

The ensemble consisted of seven dancers with Mia Slavenska, the leading prima ballerina of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo. This was their first American trans-continental tour.

Mia Slavenska was born in Yugoslavia and studied at the Royal Academy of Music in Zogreb. At the age of fifteen she gave a gala performance at the Opera House there in a program entirely arranged and choreographed by her. Later she went to Paris to pursue her studies with the most famous teachers of the Russian School of Ballet.

In 1936 Mia Slavenska's career as a concert dancer began to expand with tremendous rapidity inside France and all over Central Europe and North Africa. After these triumphs she joined the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo in Europe as prima ballerina and traveled with this company all over North and South America in stellar roles.

Mia Slavenska first became known to the general public in the United States and Canada as star of the motion picture, "Ballerina." Now at the height of her artistic powers, she is returning to the field in which she can display during one evening all the fazes of her great art.

Student Teachers

Direct Concert

On April 28 at 7:30 P. M., an evening of instrumental music was presented by students of the Hershey Public Schools in the High School Auditorium.

Student teachers of Lebanon Valley College, under the direction of Professor D. Clark Carmean, were in charge of the program.

New Year Book Is Being Printed

Latest reports from a feverish Quittie office indicates that all material for the year book has now arrived at the publishers and is being printed post haste.

Therefore, the Quittie staff has high hopes that this year's Quittapahilla will be ready for distribution by May 19, or at the latest, during the following week, in which case they will be mailed to all anxious students.

New Staff Assumes Duties With Today's Publication

The personnel of the 1944-45 staff of LA VIE COLLEGIENNE was announced by the retiring editor, Bruce Souders, at a banquet of the old and new staffs in the small dining hall on Monday, May 1. The new staff assumes its responsibilities with the present publication.

Because of the many problems involved in printing LA VIE during the war period, a co-editorship has been established. Sharing this office are Marjorie Frantz and Johann Klick, Editor and Associate Editor, respectively, of the 1945 Quittapahilla. Assisting them in the capacity of Associate Editor, is Frances Workman.

The remainder of the Editorial Board consists of: News Editor, Christine Mumma; Sports Editor, Geraldine Huss; Conservatory Editor, Ruth Karre; Feature Editor, Yvonne Raab; and Exchange Editor, Lizette Fisher.

The members of the reportorial staffs are as follows: News—Donald Rettew, Erma Loy, Madelyn Quicke, Sara Schott, Edna Mae Hollinger, Clare Schaeffer, Elizabeth Bowman, and Gerald Gruman; Sports—Helen Hartz, June Carson and Gerald Gruman; Conservatory—Elinor Strauss and Evelyn Hiester; and Features—Gilda Tulli, Edith Kreiser, and Elinor Strauss.

Etta Ayers will again head the Business Department. Associated with her as Circulation Manager is Dale Beittel, a newcomer to the staff. Typists are Elizabeth Gooden and Gale Horstick.

The LA VIE banquet, an annual affair, got under way at 6:00 P. M. After singing several songs under the direction of Ruth Karre, the staff heard a short talk by Rev. Edwin H.

Fornoff and Hess Reign During May Day Celebrations

Bright and early on Tuesday morning the campus was alive with May Day festivities, which were presented in the form of a May Day breakfast this year. Seven o'clock in the morning in the dining hall was the scene of the activities where the queen, her majesty, Hazel Fornoff, and her court presided over a meal of ham and eggs. Before the meal, the queen was crowned by Elizabeth Ann Hess.

The newly crowned ruler, her court, and her followers then retired to the campus where they were spectators of the traditional May Pole Dance. This year the dance was presented by the Sophomores instead of the Juniors, as has been the custom heretofore. The gay blue and white streamers, the colorful spring attire of the dancers and the whole assembled company blended perfectly in the early morning sunshine.

The court who smiled with pleasure on the festivities consisted of Gene Bowman, Marion Kreider, Anna Adams, Emma Catherine Miller, Blossom Levitz and Sara McGeehin. The Sophomore girls who danced before the queen were: Joanne Bittner, Claire Schaeffer, Edna Mae Hollinger, Christine Mumma, Erma Loy, Phyllis Snyder, Catherine Yeager, Elizabeth Bowman, Madeline Meily, Violo Shettel, Gilda Tulli, Ruth Karre, Eleanor Frezeman, Jean Thrush, Nancy Sattazahn, Helen Hartz, Mary Jane Wieland, and Frances Workman.

"Eddie" was the cook, and the rest of the students and faculty did the onlooking.

Radio Operator Killed In Crash of Plane in Africa

The name of Sgt. William Reed, '42, is the fifth to be added to Lebanon Valley's fatal casualty list since the start of the war.

"Bill" was killed in a plane crash in Africa, Saturday, April 22. As far as can be learned, he was on routine duty as a radio operator with the United States Army Air Corps. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Reed, of Pine Grove, were notified of their son's death on Sunday, April 23.

Originally bent on becoming a musician, Bill changed his mind after arriving on the campus, and took a degree as a history major. He did not, however, lose his interest in music. During his four years at L. V. C., he was active in the Symphony Orchestra, Chorus, and the College Orchestra.

The athletic teams at Lebanon Valley saw much of Sgt. Reed during his student days. He served and staunchly supported them as their manager, and was himself an athlete in intramural circles. Bill's extra-curricular activities were also extended to include May Day events, the Y. M. C. A. Cabinet, and the Quittapahilla.

Dean's Nephew Killed In Airplane Crash

Major Perry J. Richie, nephew of Mrs. A. H. M. Stonecipher, was killed in a plane crash last week, April 24. When the plane crashed, Major Richie was making a trip to California as a test pilot. Mrs. Stonecipher and her daughter, Virginia, '44, visited the family last week in Dayton, Ohio.

Grad Reports on Shakespeare

Miss Ida Katharine Hall, of Lancaster, Pa., just returned from England where she served as an American Red Cross camp director, has some interesting news of Shakespeare for us. Miss Hall served at the American Red Cross White Swan Club, which was the one time center of activity in Shakespeare's day in his native Stratford-on-Avon.

The White Swan Red Cross Club has become one of the most popular in England for the American servicemen. "Some come because they are curious, some because they secretly want to know more about Shakespeare's life and times. Others are earnest scholars and devotees," says Miss Hall.

Tours of all Stratford-on-Avon are arranged for visiting Yanks who wish them. The boys visit Shakespeare's birthplace as well as remains of the house where he wrote "The Tempest," his last play; the Shakespearian Theatre, Ann Hathway's cottage and Collegiate Church of Holy Trinity, where Shakespeare is buried.

Every Yank was permitted to bring one friend in the Allied Forces as his guest to the club square dances. Frequent dances were staged for the men.

"In England," says Miss Hall, "the American Red Cross camp clubs and the leave area clubs are the answer to every welfare problem of the American G. I. Every American Red Cross worker considers it the highest tribute when a Yankee says, 'Gee, this is just like our country club back home.'"

Miss Hall went overseas with the American Red Cross last June. A graduate of Lebanon Valley College, she was associated with the advertising department of the Armstrong Cork Company in Lancaster before joining the Red Cross. Earlier she taught social studies and was supervisor of Music in the schools of East Berlin, Pa.

Our Weekly Meditation

"The Lord is in His Holy temple, let all the earth keep silence before Him."

This year the LA VIE COLLEGIENNE has been sponsoring this column under the heading of Our Weekly Meditation. It is, therefore, only a suggestion that we make to you in our last issue for the school term that we all do a little serious meditating. We think ourselves so busy with the affairs of the campus that we do not wish to take some few minutes now and then for an honest consultation with ourselves.

In the spring especially we are urged inwardly to worship God in a quiet way, humbly and sincerely, as we view the beauties of a world coming to a new life. Perhaps we have felt His presence as we walked to the Quarry on a Sunday afternoon, or as we stood on the bridge out at Kreider's. And it is also very likely that we shrugged our shoulders in our sophisticated way as if to put away the realization that God is omnipresent and that thanks should be given unto Him.

Let us take time today to see this Holy Temple that is the world in spring, and let us worship quietly the Lord God who gave it to us. Meditate somewhere, sometime—soon.

Just Plain Gossip

Don't be alarmed folks, we just couldn't think of any fancy names for this column, so we decided to break down and give you the facts straight off. If you don't like our lack of appeal to your aesthetic senses, we would thank you for any suggestions.

And before we forget it, we want to send a plea to all who will be on campus in the fall—we don't care what you do that's different, but please do something. We want some good juicy material for this column—and we mean juicy.

AND THEN THERE WAS A DANCE . . .

Lots of people were there, too—except Klick. The details of her evening are being withheld, even from your reporter.

Hoerner insisted upon a snapshot to bolster his wavering courage before he said "Yes." Maybe he doesn't trust the friends of Shupper's friends, huh?

Did anybody else think they were crazy when they saw Creamie leaving N. Hall in a blue evening gown, appear at the dance garbed in a black one, and return in the blue one? Spaghetti can be maddening, can't it?

Kathryn Albert got involved in quite a few complications, too. Oh, well, the ride was fun, she says.

By the way, did anyone notice how many people disappeared during the course of the evening, especially the Grand March? (If this shoe fits you, wear it!).

Nimmy claims the record for being the only person actually reaching the top of the Tower; not that this has anything to do with the lack of people in the Grand March or anything.

COULD BE THE SPRING DAZE . . .

There are some new couples in evidence, for instance, Madalyn and George, and Evelyn and Richard, or isn't that news, or isn't it?

Gerry Huss was in a daze too, and here are our own personal orchids to her for doing a big job well.

And did you hear about Haverstock? Returning from a big week-end, she fell asleep on the bus and didn't wake up till Lebanon.

Gene had a wonderful week-end, too, and Jeanne Kitchen finally has that diamond that we've all been waiting for.

Here's wishing you an exciting summer holiday, and do please tell us all about it when you return; we have to print something, don't we?

Your "Y's" and You . . .

A column expressing the endeavors of your YWCA and YMCA as well as the reflections of your participation.

A message from the retiring President of the YWCA.

ADDING UP

With mingled joy and regret we approach the end of another college year.

DISC DATA

Ludwig Van Beethoven in the year 1798 met with Bernadotte, the French ambassador to Vienna. At this meeting it was suggested that Beethoven write a symphony in honor of Napoleon Bonaparte. In writing this majestic work Beethoven was not esteeming Napoleon the conqueror, but Napoleon the upholder of freedom. Early in 1804 the composition was completed, and Ferdinand Ries tells us that on the title page there were but two names—Bonaparte and Ludwig van Beethoven. With the proclamation of Napoleon as Emperor, and announcement of his conquests, the composer's idol was shattered, and in a fit of disappointment and anger he tore the title pages in fragments, exclaiming: "Then he is only a common man after all." Napoleon continued in his tremendous military triumphs, but Beethoven expressed his feelings in the matter by inscribing the title page with the words: "Symphony Heroic, composed in honor of the memory of a great man." Upon the death of Napoleon in 1821 Beethoven remarked in reference to the Funeral March in his Third Symphony: "I have already written the proper music for that tragedy."

The Symphony No. 3, Eroica, in E Flat Major, Opus 55, is without doubt one of the greatest creations of any musical mind. In it the Beethoven of more mature works is seen. His First and Second symphonies retain elements of his classical predecessors, but this work is little reminiscent of earlier works. Though in any of his compositions no matter how early in his career they were written, there is something markedly Beethoven, this symphony is almost without exception wholly expressive of maturity in this titanic individual. Powerful, majestic, and magnificent from beginning to end this work is an inspired jewel of true genius. The Allegro Con Brio, the Funeral March, which is truly music for the death of kings, the lively Scherzo, and the Finale are all thrilling to the lover of Beethoven.

Marian M. Kreider.

Looking Backward

One of the many gifts that an old LA VIE staff presents to the new one is the talent to see into the future and predict the year that is to come. And as we exercise that gift there are many things that we can see. We can see a campus life even more radically changed than that of this year, we can see our own doubts and uncertainties as to the rightness of our being here, and we can see the fear that will live with us for our loved ones who are out in the fight.

But as we focus a little more clearly on the future there are other things existing side by side with change and doubt and fear. There is the strength that comes from understanding what the fight is about, the courage that springs from a knowledge that here we are preparing for a better self and nation and world, and the quiet hope, that, as surely as the Chinese students carried their universities to safety, so we may carry Lebanon Valley from the present, over dangerous ground, safely into the future, whole and unharmed, please God.

Looking Forward

It doesn't seem possible that the time has come for us to say goodbye to the Senior members of this staff. Perhaps we are reluctant to do so because we know we have a big job to do in accepting the responsibilities that they have so ably carried this year. They have done a grand job—as some of us know who have worked long hours with them trying to meet the deadlines—and we appreciate it.

Next year as we scurry around LA VIE hunting material for the third page at 9:55 P. M., we shall think of you and, as we shall be doing many other times, wish you were back to help us.

However, we do know it is up to us now—and we hereby give our promise to you and to all those who are leaving the campus that we are not going to fall down on the work that you have started.

LA VIE will go on—as always—hitting for newer and higher standards each year!

Come to the Carnival

"So pack up your troubles and leave every care—
Heigh-ho, come to the Carnival."

You will soon be hearing catch phrases such as this swinging through the air to lure you to the grand and glorious event of the year—the Carnival, sponsored by the Senior Conservatory Students. For weeks the girls have been scurrying about in search of added amusements for your pleasure, since they want you to have one great fling before the fearful days of doom begin.

We can assure you that Bunny Royce well deserves all the credit to be given her, and we hope that you won't forget to tell her and her committee what a "swell" time you have had. This is your chance to really let down your hair and join in with the gang for a night of fun and frolic on the campus green.

In case you have forgotten, the theme of the evening will be Pennies. No, they are not giving them away—that's where you come in. It will be just like the penny fairs you attended back in the good old days before anyone told you there were such things as final exams.

There will be music and dancing and Bingo—and, well—anything else you can think of that means Fun. (That is, almost anything else.)

"So pack up your troubles and leave every care—
Heigh-ho, come to the Carnival."

CAMPUS CLUBS

CHEMISTRY

The final meeting of the Chemistry Club was held on April 30. After the news given by Edgar Schnee, and a talk by Dr. Porter, election of officers for the coming year was held. The officers are Edith Kreiser, President; Richard Cover, Vice-president; and Sarah Elizabeth Sheetz, Secretary-Treasurer.

BIOLOGY

The members of the Biology Class held a meeting on Monday, April 24. Sara Shott gave the news, and Sarah Elizabeth Sheetz and Nancy Schreiber discussed their genetic experiments on mice. After the meeting, a party was held in honor of Dr. Derickson's birthday.

W. C. C.

On Thursday, April 27, the women day students elected seven new members to the Women's Commuters Council. The Senior members are Gilda Tulli, Johann Klick, and the Juniors are Joanne Bittner and Claire Schaeffer. The Sophomores who were elected are Jean Bedger and Nancy Johns. The election concluded W. C. C. activities for this semester.

CLIO

Betty Gooden has been chosen by the Clonian Literary Society as President for the coming semester. Betty is a student in the Conservatory and has appeared in numerous recitals. She is also a new addition to the LA VIE staff as a typist.

Other officers elected are: Geraldine Huss, Vice President; Edith Kreiser, Secretary; and Jean Bedger, Treasurer.

Personals

The engagement party of Jeanne Kitchen, '47, was held in Harrisburg, April 24th, at 6 P. M. Those attending from Lebanon Valley were Judy Ulmer, Nora Mae Goodman, Barbara Kolb, Nancy Saurman, Caroline Mease, June Carson, Joye Rasher, Jean Kauffman, and Gladys Flinchbaugh.

Miss Arlene Kittering, a student at Elizabethtown College, was the guest of Sara Shott the weekend of April 29th.

Miss Dorothy Herr, cousin of June Carson, '47, visited campus the last weekend. Miss Herr resides in Lancaster.

Dean A. H. M. Stonecipher has been occupying the pulpit of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed Church in Lebanon during the illness of the pastor, Rev. Marsteller.

Klee Jane Etter, from Greencastle, was the guest of Edna Mae Hollinger last weekend.

In the past week many servicemen have returned to campus for short visits. The Navy was well represented by Kenneth Gerhart '44 stationed at Bainbridge, Glenn Hall '47, from Sampson, N. Y., Robert Zimmerman '45, stationed at Franklin and Marshall College, and Robert Yannaccone '43.

Also visiting his Alma Mater was Cpl. William Keeler '46, who is with the Airborne Troops.

W. A. A. Initiates In View Of Exams Hike

Yesterday afternoon at 4:30 the annual W. A. A. Initiation Hike took place. The initiates and members assembled on the North Hall steps and from there departed for Fink's picnic grounds. On the way and at the destination the candidates for membership were duly coached in behavior patterns.

At the end of the hike there were plenty of refreshments furnished by "Eddie" for both members and their new friends. An important feature of the hike was the election of the W. A. A. Cabinet for the coming college year. LA VIE went to press before final results of the election were available. Nominations for the main positions are as follows:

President—Joanne Bittner, Jeanne Waller; Secretary—Evelyn Heister, Eleanor Hershey; Treasurer—Elizabeth Bowman, Catherine Yeager.

The students being initiated into the organization are as follows: Grace Cully, Mary Strock, Jean Bedger, Betty Jean Butt, Mildred Emerich, Nora Mae Goodman, Gale Horstick, Nancy Johns, Jacqueline McDonald, Carolyn Moss, Mary Elizabeth Myers, Madalyn Quickel, Ethel Rentzel, Martha Ross, Arlene Schlosser, Kathleen Eyster, Mildred Palmer, and Carolyn Mease.

Student Recitals

A series of student recitals presented in Engle Hall concluded the year's activities of the Lebanon Valley College Conservatory of Music.

The program of May 1 featured a recital of piano concertos, and was arranged as follows: March from Suite Algerienne—Saint-Saens, Arlene Schlosser and Mildred Emrich; Concerto in a Minor—Schumann, Miriam Tippiery and Evelyn Heister; Epithalamium, variations on an ancient Lebanese wedding song—Fuleihan, Janet Dietz and Ruth Karre; Concerto in G Minor—Mendelssohn, Molto allegro con fuoco, Jeanne Waller and Barbara Kolb; Andante and Molto allegro e vivace from the same work, Elizabeth Travis and Barbara Kolb.

In the second recital given May 4 the following artists performed: Mildred Emerich, Piano; Charlotte Mohler, String Bass; and Elizabeth Gooden, Accompanist; Sarah Stauffer, Piano; Ruth Karre, Soprano and Barbara Kolb, Accompanist; Helen Dickel, Piano; Elizabeth Reiff, Violin, Maeredith Houser Cello, and Jeanne Waller, Organ; and Helen Seabrook, Piano.

Yale Scholarship For Beamesderfer

It was announced recently that Samuel H. Beamesderfer was given a scholarship in the Yale University Divinity School, New Haven, Connecticut.

"Sam" has been an active leader in campus organizations, and is especially known for his splendid work in the newly organized World Citizenship Movement at Lebanon Valley. It is also to be noted that his name has appeared on the Dean's List consistently since his entrance into college. He will begin his course of studies at Yale sometime in September.

In View Of Exams

The exam schedule was posted on the bulletin board a few weeks ago, and for a time it was the center of much study and speculation. Students hurried and scurried about in front of the board, buzzing their hopes about changing a date here and there.

But then, after the first fervor, the numbers grouped before the bulletin board declined, as each went home to ponder his own secret sorrow. All minds deliberately thought of the gayety that was to come—the prom and May Day and supper hikes and ----. In vain all were still sinkingly aware of the fact that EXAMS start on Tuesday, May 9, and that much cramming would have to precede them. Sleep will be out of the question for days on end, until the blessed time when we can shout—Hoorah, we're done!

W.A.A. Holds Formal Dinner Banquet

The Women's Athletic Association of Lebanon Valley College concluded their activities with a formal dinner banquet in the College Dining Hall on Thursday, May 4, at 6:00 P. M. Guest speaker for the evening was Mrs. Kruger, a resident of Anville. Awards were given to outstanding sports women in the form of letters and pins.

Chairmen of the banquet committees were: Food, Gerry Huss; Favors, Edith Kreiser and Christine Mumma; Program, Clare Schaeffer and Marion Himmelberger; Decoration, Catherine Yeager.

of this year might be stated in one sentence. As with any campus activity, the enjoyment of the "Y" directed program can be measured only in terms of your participation.

Next year the burden of directing "Y" activities will fall, for the most part, upon the new YWCA cabinet. For them it will be a challenging year, but then there is also a challenge for your participation with them.

2 Leading Mid-West Educators Praise Waves' Training Program

WAVES on the march at Hunter College, New York

The Navy's WAVES are not only doing vital win-the-war work but the experience they gain is an important complement to their education, assert two of the Mid-West's leading educators—Dr. W. C. Coffey, president of the University of Minnesota, and Dr. John C. West, president of the University of North Dakota.

"If I had a daughter of my own and if she were properly qualified, I would be gratified if she should decide to join the WAVES," says Dr. Coffey. "It seems to me wise to take women into the armed forces for required services that they can handle quite as well or even better than can men."

Dr. W. C. Coffey "Such a procedure is far better than taking men out of positions in defense industries and other civilian positions important in connection with the war and which are more or less difficult for women. After all, this is a total war, calling for the placement of each and every individual where he or she can contribute to greatest advantage. I found that the war training programs that have been established for women offer a real opportunity not only for service to the country but also for their own personal development."

"A Vital Service"
Commenting on the WAVE recruiting program, Dr. West declares: "We are proud that so many women graduates of the University of North Dakota are serving their country in the uniform of the WAVES. We recognize that the training they receive is an important complement to their formal education, and that the work which they do is a vital service to their country in a time when such service is urgently needed. I heartily endorse this branch of service in the Navy, and I would be happy to lend my support to any program to recruit new members to carry on its great work."

The Navy Department has just issued a new booklet on the WAVES, free copies of which are available to young women at Navy Recruiting Stations or offices of Naval Officer Procurement.

Rattlers Are Victors In Axe League

The Rattlers fought their way to victory in the photo-finish race for Axe League supremacy in a thrilling game on Wednesday, April 26. The Bears put up a stiff battle throughout the basketball championship game. At half time the Bears were ahead by one point, but the Rattlers came back to a 46-40 victory. "Hank" Detweiler topped the scoring list for the Rattlers with 29 points. Captain Ted Lenker who was about to leave for the Navy scored 14 points. Bashore and Schnee chalked up for the Bears, 20 and 13 points each.

The championship game also saw Detweiler clinch the individual scoring title with a total of 209 points for the season. Bashore was a close second with 206 points.

The final team standings are: Rattlers, won 8, lost 3; Bears, won 7, lost 4; Wildcats, won 1, lost 9. Thanks to the efforts of "Mike" Intrieri and the Men's Day Student Council, the intramural basketball season was a very successful one.

Spring Sports in Vogue

Have you seen some action lately in the direction of the tennis courts? Spring is in the air, and the male element of LV is spending some time getting the courts in shape. The writer has hopes which extend in two directions. First, here's hoping that the energetic start exhibited in the preparation of the courts will continue until the job is done. Secondly, now is the time for all tennis fans, new and old, good and bad, to send for that tennis racket, and have it ready for the time when the fellows finish. If you've never played, see some of the people who know the game. If you're good, practice a lot, so that you'll get better. Anyway, the action so far looks good, keep up the spirit and let's have some good times this year.

Do you like to walk on the campus? Here's how to do it without arousing the ire of the governing bodies or the administration. Wend your way to the archery range and try for the bull's eye. There has been quite a bit of action on the range lately, and it looks good. Keep it up, archers, and try to enlist others.

Sponsellor. He emphasized the place of the college and university newspaper in providing school spirit, in coordinating college functions, and in presenting unbiased news-pictures of campus life. Dr. George G. Struble, one of the faculty advisers of the staff, also made a few remarks in which he complemented the retiring officers and welcomed new editors to their positions.

The meeting was adjourned after the announcement of the names of the members of the new staff.

Frezeman and Mumma to Edit '46 "Quittie"

Eleanor Frezeman and Christine Mumma were elected Editors-in-Chief of the 1946 Quittapahilla at a Sophomore Class meeting held Wednesday, May 3, 1944. Clare Schaeffer was named Business Manager at the same time.

The remainder of the staff will be appointed in the near future, as plans are already in progress for the new year-book.
